HST In Stupor, Not Coma . . .

Truman Passes Critical Period

Kansas City (AP) — Former President Harry S. Truman, battling lung congestion and bronchitis, remained on the critical list early Thursday, but hospital officials said he had "passed through an ultra-critical period."

A spokesman at Research Hospital and Medical Center, where the 88-year-old former chief executive was taken Tuesday evening, said Truman's condition remained critical as of 11:15 p.m. CST.

But the hospital's hourly bulletin reported "he is not in a coma and is becoming more responsive to stimuli." An hour earlier, the spokesman had said Truman was in a "deep stupor but responsive to painful stimuli as differentiated from a coma — when the patient is unresponsive."

Truman's condition was downgraded from serious to critical late Wednesday, and John Dreves, spokesman for Research Hospital, said he had suffered a "temporary relapse." He said Truman's condition later stabilized, however.

At Truman's bedside were his wife Bess and her sister-in-law, Mrs. George Wallace, the hospital said.

Truman's temperature was 102.8 degrees, the hospital said, indicating "he is not responding to antibiotics administered intramuscularly, necessitating the administration of the antibiotics intravenously."

"The administration is being performed with extreme care to prevent adverse reactions because of his known allergies," a hospital spokesman said.

An hour earlier, the hospital said Truman's condition was in a "very delicate and critical balance."

The Trumans' daughter, Mrs. Clifton Daniel of Washington, was flying here in a jet provided by the White House.

Computer Problems Delay Night Launch

. . . Lunar Arrival Time Not Affected

Cape Kennedy, Fla. (AP) — Delayed for more than two hours by a computer problem coming within a breath of a flawless liftoff, Apollo 17 vaulted toward the moon Thursday morning.

The last flight of the historic Apollo series began at 12:33 a.m. EST as a thundering Saturn 5 rocket thrust Navy Capt. Eugene A. Cernan, geologist Harrison H. "Jack" Schmitt and Navy Cmdr. Ronald E. Evans away from their home planet on a scientific expedition to fill in missing chapters of moon history.

Orbit Attained

Despite the delay in launch, Apollo 17 went smoothly into earth orbit. To reach the moon, the spacecraft orbits the earth twice in slightly more than three hours. Then, another rocket burst from the Saturn 5's third stage was to send the spacemen toward the moon and away from their home planet.

Mission Control said the tardy launch will not affect the Dec. 11 arrival time at the moon.

The lost time will be made up by performing a more powerful rocket thrust when the spacecraft blasts out of earth orbit.

Thousands View Liftoff

Hundreds of thousands of persons jammed viewing sites in the Cape Kennedy area to bid farewell to Apollo and to watch the blazing departure in the first after-dark launching of an American manned space flight.

The countdown originally had moved smoothly to within 30 seconds of the planned liftoff time of 8:53 p.m. when the trouble occurred.

The countdown clock was reset for 22 minutes before liftoff and the count was picked up at 9:58 p.m. CST. The control center then counted down to eight minutes before launch and stopped the process a second time.

Experts here determined that a computer which controls the countdown was not able to accept the fact the third stage oxygen tank was being pressurized manually instead of automatically as planned. In effect they worked out a new program which told the computer to accept the manual pressurization.

The three astronauts slept until noon and underwent a brief physical examination. They had an early evening steak supper, donned their bulky white spacesuits and then boarded a van for the trip to the launch pad, where their 36-story-tall rocket was bathed in floodlights.

President Nixon phoned them from Camp David, Md., Tuesday night and wished them well and Godspeed.

The veteran, Cernan, 38, is making his third trip into space. Schmitt, 37, and Evans, 39, are going for the first time.

The presence of Schmitt, a professional geologist and the first scientist to fly in space, will add a new dimension to lunar exploration.

With his trained eye and Cernan's nearly two years of geology training, these two adventurers hope to find rocks that will tell scientists about the early and late history of the moon, filling in missing gaps in lunar evolution.

End Of Beginning

Cernan, the articulate commander of Apollo 17, has dedicated the mission to awakening the world to the fact that this "is not the end of space flight. It is just the conclusion of the beginning. We're not putting our rockets in the barn and closing the door. We're just beginning to understand and accept the challenge that the universe has for us."

"We will be the last men to visit the moon for perhaps a quarter-century," he said.

"We want to say 'Hey world, hey, America, look at what we've accomplished, but look at where we can go. Let's set our sights deeper into space. The challenge and the quest for knowledge is available for all mankind and the world.'"

Adjutant General's Post Attracts Heavy Lobbying

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Active lobbying for one of Gov. J. James Exon's most sought after appointments during his term of office began six months ago.

On Jan. 27, Maj. Gen. Lyle Welch will celebrate his 64th birthday, reaching retirement age as adjutant general of the Nebraska National Guard.

Lobbying on behalf of possible successors began to reach the governor's office last summer. Guard officers have presented Exon with arguments in behalf of their preferences, and the governor has visited privately with a number of possible appointees.

Among the leading prospects for the post are Brig. Gen. Donald Penterman and Brig. Gen. John Stephenson, both of Lincoln.

But the final choice has not been narrowed to those two possibilities, it was understood. Other Guard officers are also being considered.

Penterman has been deputy adjutant general since 1959, when he was appointed by the late Gov. Ralph Brooks. He has been active in the Guard since 1940.

Stephenson is executive staff assistant of the Army National Guard and commanding general of the 67th Infantry Brigade. He was appointed by former Gov. Norbert Tiemann.

Both generals are veterans of World War II.

Welch has been adjutant general since 1959. He was appointed to the post by Gov. Brooks and has served under four succeeding governors.

The adjutant general oversees a vast network of statewide activities involving 5,000 troops and nearly 600 employees.

Troop allocations include some 4,300 Army Guardsmen and nearly 1,000 Air National Guardsmen.

The Army organization has 40 units in 30 communities. The Air Guard is organized in 10 units located at the Lincoln Air National Guard Base.

In addition, a cadre of 220 is authorized for the State Guard, a back-up force for the National Guard.

The governor is commander-in-chief of the National Guard. The adjutant general controls the Military Department for the governor.

Welch has also headed the state's civil defense operation and the emergency planning office.

Exon Hasn't Made Up Mind About Judicial Appointment

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Gov. J. James Exon said Wednesday he might not appoint either Warren Lichty Jr. or Dale E. Fahrbruch to the Lancaster County district judgeship pending clarification of some legal questions.

"I haven't made up my mind. I might choose from the two names given me by the judicial nominating commission or I might not appoint either one," Exon said in an interview.

The original press release which made public the commission's choices stated that Exon would choose from the two. However, Wednesday Exon explained that the phrase in question was included through "an oversight" by his staff who based the release on standard form.

Bound up in the matter is the question of how a recently approved constitutional amendment changing the composition of judicial nominating commissions affects the two nominations. Also, Exon questioned whether the commission is forwarding the names of all those who are qualified.

In the first place, Exon said he is "mystified" as to why the commission passed over the names of Municipal Court Judge Harold McManus and Assistant Attorney General Robert R. Camp this time, both of whom were among the names given to Exon several months ago for two other Lancaster County district court vacancies. Those two spots were filled by Sam Van Pelt and William Blue.

And why, Exon continued, Fahrbruch, who also sought one of those two judgeships and whom Exon called "well-qualified" was left off the judicial nominating commission's list of names five months ago.

"Why does this person now qualify when he didn't five months ago? These considerations are puzzling," Exon commented.

"If we are going to continue merit system selection of those attorneys qualified to be sent to the governor for his appointment, then I suggest we're going to have to be more consistent."

"Through my record I have supported the merit plan. Generally it works well. This is the third occasion where I felt that the commission did not follow the concept of the law. It doesn't say the committee select the judges, rather it is designed to make recommendations for all of the qualified candidates," Exon said.

However, in some instances Exon said the commission tends to place itself in the position of being the one who selects the judge—a power reserved for the governor.

While Exon said he has his own theory on the matter he said the reasons behind the commission's selection are known only to its members.

Exon, who now has 54 days to select a successor for Judge Elmer Scheele or the selection will be made by the chief justice of the Supreme Court, also said there could be some legal ramifications to Fahrbruch and Lichty's nominations in light of Constitutional Amendment 12 which passed in the Nov. 7 election.

That change adds a layman and an attorney to the committees and removes the Nebraska Supreme Court justice as a voting member. It also mandates that no more than four of the seven-person committees be of the same political party. Both Fahrbruch and Lichty are Republicans, and the committee is currently weighted in the Republican direction by a 6-1 margin.

Since Exon will be signing the amendment within 10 days, Exon said there is some question whether the committee's nominees will be valid.

"There is some legal question regarding the timing of my making a selection between the two attorneys for Lancaster County district judge. This is somewhat further complicated by the vacancy in January when Omaha Juvenile Court Judge Hart is required to step down," Exon said.

That commission is scheduled to meet shortly.

'Veterinarian Of Year' Honor To Dr. N. Kruse

The Nebraska Veterinary Medical Association's "Veterinarian of the Year" award was presented to Dr. Norman Kruse of Genoa the Nebraska state veterinarian.

In making the award at the association's annual convention Wednesday evening, Dr. James Edwards of Sidney, awards chairman, said "The recognition of Dr. Kruse is a most deserving one."

"We have many outstanding individuals in our association," Dr. Edwards said, "and we feel that Dr. Kruse typifies the high caliber of individuals who are providing animal health and disease control care through veterinary medicine."

"Dr. Kruse has done an outstand ing job as state veterinarian and is highly regarded by not only members of his own profession but by the entire livestock industry," Dr. Edwards said.

Prior to his appointment as state veterinarian, Kruse practiced in Genoa for 25 years and in Beatrice prior to that time.

He is a past president of the Nebraska Veterinary Medical Association and has been an active member of the Association for a great many years. He has served as a member of the Board of Examiners in Veterinary Medicine, was mayor of Genoa for 12 years and served on the school board for nine years.

He is a past president of the Nebraska Shorthorn-Polled Breeders Association and is currently an advisor to the Nebraska Junior Shorthorn Association.

Dr. Kruse was also an active 4-H leader for 11 years and a member of many civic organizations, both local, state and national.

He served as a lieutenant in the United States Navy during World War II. Dr. Kruse and his wife Ruth have two sons.

Survey: Reported Peace Terms Regarded As Fair Compromise By Majority

By LOUIS HARRIS
A solid majority of 65% of the American people reject the suggestion that the reported terms of the peace agreement in Vietnam are a victory for either the Communists or the United States, but feel rather that they are a "fair compromise" way to settle the war. This does not mean, however, that most Americans do not see real problems stemming from the ending of the war.

Despite the fact that heavy majorities of the public support the specific provisions of the proposed agreement, a substantial 72% feel the Communists are likely to "violate the agreement" in a major or minor way, and an even 50% also feel that the Saigon government will also likely violate the pact.

When asked who will probably control South Vietnam five years from now, 33% of the public felt the Communists would take over, an equal 33% hold the view that a coalition government with the Communists in it will be in control, while only 9% believe the present government will run the country, and no more than 7% see a neutralist group in power in Vietnam.

Thus, it can be said that most Americans do not foresee an easy, nor entirely peaceful road ahead for the people of South Vietnam. Basically, the people of this country view the Vietnam conflict as a violent and unhappy episode with no victor. The final terms of settlement are thought to be essentially honorable, but no better than a "fair compromise."

When asked for their views about the controversial bombing of North Vietnam ordered by President Nixon earlier this year, a majority of 58-25% registered their conviction that the bombings have "helped both sides to finally arrive at a peace agreement." In other words, the public is convinced that the violent and prolonged conflict was brought to a halt through American force, with no real guarantees that further outbreaks of fighting will not occur in the future or that South Vietnam will be kept out of Communist control.

Louis Harris
No Victory Seen

Nonetheless, a substantial majority of Americans favor the terms of the agreement as outlined in October, partly because they will signal the end of direct U.S. involvement in the war, partly because our prisoners-of-war will be returned, and partly because in assuring the South Vietnamese of elections they will at least have a fair voice in determining their own future.

On Nov. 21 and 22, a cross section of 1,504 people 18 years of age and over were asked: "All in all, do you feel the reported terms of the agreement between the U.S. and North Vietnam are a victory for North Vietnam, for the U.S., or are a fair compromise?"

TERMS OF AGREEMENT Total

Victory for North Vietnam 13%
Victory for U.S. 13%
A fair compromise 65%
Not sure 9%

A substantial majority thought both sides gave some to achieve the final settlement. But almost as large a majority also holds the view that the bombings of North Vietnam helped bring about the final agreement. They were asked: "Do you feel the bombing of North Vietnam by the U.S. helped or hindered both sides finally arriving at a peace settlement?"

ROLE OF BOMBINGS IN ENDING WAR
Helped bring about agreement 58%
Hindered agreement 25%
Not sure 17%

As for the settlement itself, the public foresees troubles in keeping both sides from violating the agreement. People were asked: "Do you think the Communists will abide by the Vietnam peace agreement or do you think they will violate it in a major way or in a minor way?"

ABIDE BY OR VIOLATE AGREEMENT?
Will abide by terms 13%
Will violate in major way 33%
Will violate in minor way 36%
Not sure 18%

Although the public thinks the Communists are more apt to violate the agreement than the Saigon government, substantial numbers feel both will not live up to the terms. Nor are most Americans sanguine about an ultimate government in Vietnam which will be free from either Communist domination or at least participation. The cross section was asked: "Five years from now, if you had to guess, who do you think will be in control of South Vietnam: the Communists, the present Thieu government, a neutralist government, or some form of coalition government with the Communists in it?"

WHO WILL CONTROL SOUTH VIETNAM 5 YEARS FROM NOW?
Communists 33%
Coalition with Communists 33%
Present Thieu government 7%
Neutralists 7%
Not sure 16%

Of course, this is merely the guess of most Americans today as the war finally is ending for this country. Despite these worries, it is significant that 65% still feel the reported terms of settlement represent a "fair compromise."

Abel-Sandoz Chorus Will Present Christmas Concert

The Abel-Sandoz Residence Halls Chorus at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln will spread Christmas cheer with a public concert Dec. 10 in the Sandoz Fish Bowl.

According to chorus coordinator Ellen Becker, junior in nursing from South Sioux City, the group was formed last year to involve non-music majors living in the two dormitories. The 26-member chorus, which practices two or three times each week, presented two concerts last year and plans another concert in March entitled "Night on Broadway."

Songs of the Christmas season to be sung by the co-ed chorus include "Carol of the Bells" by Leontovich, "The Shepherd's Chorus" by Menotti, "The Gift of Love" by Pasageate, and "It's the Most Wonderful Time of the Year" by Pola & Wylei. Liz Dutton of Omaha will accompany the chorus on the piano.

No one was injured, and the Lincoln Park pilot said he landed his craft there because mist and patchy fog made visibility so poor he did not want to risk continuing his flight to an Oakland County airport.

Although traffic was interrupted for a short time, electrical service was not, police said.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER
Sometimes you wonder where the great minds of the nation are. As this was being written, the countdown was proceeding at Cape Kennedy, Fla., for launching of Apollo 17 and another complicated trip to the moon for U.S. astronauts.

As an aside, it is interesting to note that, among those minor things causing a delay in the countdown, was a defective battery mount. That should be encouraging to the average husband who often finds himself frustrated by some minor little problem around the house.

If a battery mount can go whacky among all the highly skilled experts at Cape Kennedy is easy to see how a loose nut might toul up the family handyman or how he might be terribly confused over the intricacies of even a relatively simple household appliance.

But the impressive thing at the Cape, of course, is the fantastic technological capacity demonstrated with this venture into outer space. And the same expertise can be seen in an almost endless parade of activities within our society where our scientific and mathematical ability permit us to move ahead by leaps and bounds.

Shortly after this space business was entered into, however, fears were expressed as to the adequacy of our social sciences and those same fears are as prominent now as they have ever been. We have not in the intervening years, made the progress there that holds any real promise for the future of mankind.

President Nixon has now appointed a new man to head up the Department of Housing and Urban Development, a post vacated by George Romney after four frustrating years. Romney was unable to accomplish any shift of minority of low income groups into the suburbs in relief of inner cities ghetto situations.

Additionally, he saw the government's housing program turned into a crooked scheme by men and companies who milked it for whatever money they could get out of it to the detriment of those the program was supposed to serve and to the substantial expense of Uncle Sam.

Now it is estimated that the government will be left holding the bag for millions of dollars worth of residential property with a value far less than the mortgage against it. Swindlers made a windfall and people needing help were cheated.

Studies have shown that government efforts at pre-school training of disadvantaged youngsters has not made much progress. In a majority of cases, the training simply has been of no benefit in the future rate of achievement of those enrolled in the program.

Now, the prestigious Carnegie Commission on Higher Education has recommended that the country's urban campuses deepen their involvement in big-city problems and increase the access of urban dwellers to higher education opportunities. But what, if anything, will ever come of the recommendation?

Nebraska President D. B. Varner has pushed for greater inner city involvement on the part of the University of Nebraska at Omaha but we are not aware that any such program has yet gotten very far off the ground.

Higher education certainly offers one avenue of approach to the human problems of the nation but you wonder if it will ever be given the public funds to do such a job. Obviously, we need new insight into these problems if we are to have any success in solving them.

What we need is a dedication to human enrichment. We have no argument with a White House administration that becomes disillusioned with the social welfare programs of the past because many of them have failed in one way or another or to some degree.

We should substitute in place of the past failures a new dedication to the social sciences. We should never admit that the problems of poverty, of illness and of minority groups are beyond the scope of our intelligence.

If we were willing to put into the social sciences the same effort we have put into such things as physics, electronics, chemistry, mathematics, engineering and all the other earmarks of technological progress we might find the answers to much of the human suffering and hardship that afflicts our society.

MARIANNE MEANS Nixon Shrugs Off New Black Support

WASHINGTON — President Nixon's appointment of a hard hat to be Secretary of Labor represents an effort to consolidate the Republican Party's support among white middle-class working families.

It is also a slap in the face to black men and women at a time that they have begun to show new independence and sophistication in their voting patterns. Despite an indifferent record on civil rights, the President won 21 per cent of the black vote in November, an increase of 9 per cent over his 1968 black vote.

Peter Brennan is president of the New York State Building and Construction Trades Councils, a division of the single most discriminatory union in the country. After his selection for the Cabinet, the Coalition of Job Equality charged that Brennan's "whole life has been dedicated to keeping black and Puerto Rican workers out of the construction trades."

Brennan's appointment puts in jeopardy the concept of the so-called "Philadelphia Plan," a Labor Department scheme to bring more blacks into jobs on construction projects financed by Federal contracts. Brennan played a role in setting up a similar plan in New York which blacks complained was too weak.

The "Philadelphia Plan" is already in trouble, because local contractors have been holding down the number of blacks hired by rotating the same workers from job to job. The President made an effort to appeal to middle-class blacks during the campaign by stressing his appointments of black officials and appearing with Sammy Davis Jr. and other black celebrities.

'Why Break Up A Winning Team?'

What People Want, People Get

City Councilman Richard Baker defended his vote to override the mayor's veto of a controversial zoning change to multiple dwelling at 43rd and Normal by stating that people want to live in apartments. Thus, the zoning should be changed at 43rd and Normal to permit apartment construction.

That is about as zany a piece of reasoning we have ever heard but it typifies the kind of zoning decisions that have consistently come out the present City Council. Only Councilman Steve Cook and Councilwoman Mrs. Helen Boosalis have stood against the erosion of intelligent planning as carried out by Councilmen Baker, Richard Hartsock, Harry Peterson, Merle Hale and Robert Sikyta.

This group of five, with an occasional exception here or there, has followed a system of anarchy in zoning and land planning — giving just about everyone anything they want by way of property classification and ignoring the principles of orderly development. Lincoln will pay a heavy price in the future for the mistakes of this group.

What will the price be? It will be in terms of costly public improvements such as streets and utilities for poorly planned developments and in terms of decayed property values because of conflicting and contradictory land uses.

It is unfortunate that the group of five cannot visualize the havoc they are wreaking with their permissiveness for almost every proposal that comes along. With them, the dollar seems to speak far more eloquently than any way of life.

An opponent to the 43rd and Normal zoning related that some of the council was even critical of being bothered by phone calls and letters on the subject. Baker is reported to have said that his private business came first and city business was second.

Why, we wonder, did he ever run for the job to begin with? And what sort of a public official is it who disdains the active participation of the citizenry in public affairs? Our City Council not only has a blind spot on zoning but apparently believes in the theory of divine right.

Pre-Trial Detention Hit

Changes in the Lincoln Police Department's pre-trial detention practices have been suggested by a special committee of the Lincoln Bar Association and the bar's action on the recommendations is expected yet this month.

In Lincoln, a person accused of a crime is released before trial only at the discretion of the police. If the accused is an adult, he is not released at all before arraignment if he is arrested for a felony, on a warrant or for a drug-related charge. If arrested on a misdemeanor charge, an accused may be released before his initial court appearance if the police so choose, but only to an attorney—which incurs an expense that many accused persons find difficult to meet. There are no provisions for producing one's own bail to be released, or being released on personal recognizance. Some people have been held over a weekend, and in the case of a Monday holiday, a very long weekend, before seeing a judge. What the system amounts to is that in some cases the person accused of a misdemeanor serves a jail sentence even if charges are later dismissed or the accused is found not guilty.

Committee chairman Paul Galter says the present system of pretrial detention in Lincoln is "rotten." We would agree that it appears to violate due process and the concept of equal treatment before the law. The basic unfairness of it is that some accused persons can manage to be released before arraignment and can afford it, while others cannot.

Galter's panel has come up with two proposals. One provides that the Municipal Court set up a schedule of bail amounts for various crimes, to be produced by the accused before release. The second proposal would set up a procedure under which some people accused of a crime could be released without bond, on their own recognizance, before they appear before a judge.

A similar system in Omaha has met with wide-spread approval. Hopefully, the work of Galter's committee will enjoy the support of the Lincoln bar, which could then encourage a change in pre-trial detention practices here.

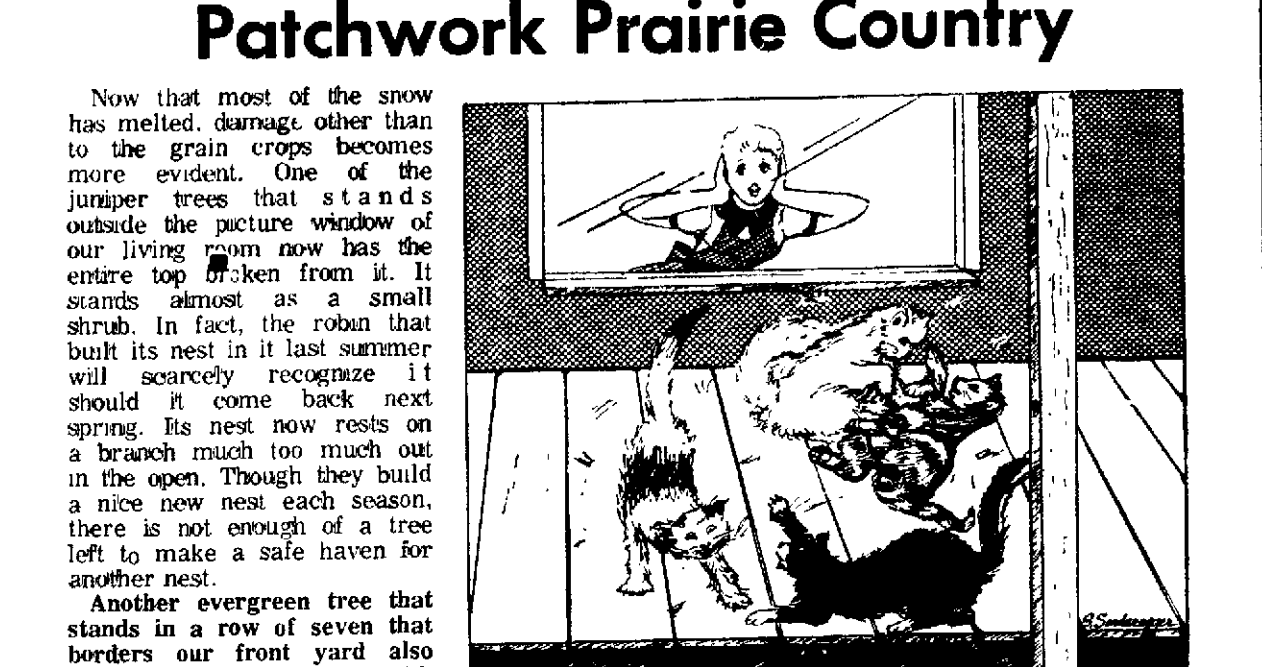

Finally, the Kremlin has realized a dream to which all Soviet regimes since Stalin's have aspired: formal acceptance of the political status quo in Europe. This has not been easy. Throughout the Truman, Eisenhower and Kennedy administrations the idea was vigorously opposed in Washington.

There have indeed been temporary setbacks: the 1956 Polish upheaval and Hungarian uprising, the Czechoslovakian occupation of 1968, the troubles with heretical Yugoslavia and independent-minded Rumania. But Yugoslavia is now showing dangerous signs of international discord and potential crisis when President Tito dies, and Rumania is fully aware that its freedom of attitude on foreign matters has rigid limitations.

The courteship of Moscow by France, West Germany and America is wholly endorsed in the west but has split political

LA VERNA HASSLER Patchwork Prairie Country

Now that most of the snow has melted, damage other than to the grain crops becomes more evident. One of the juniper trees that stands outside the picture window of our living room now has the entire top broken from it. It stands almost as a small shrub. In fact, the robin that built its nest in it last summer will scarcely recognize it should it come back next spring. Its nest now rests on a branch much too much out in the open. Though they build a nice new nest each season, there is not enough of a tree left to make a safe haven for another nest.

Another evergreen tree that stands in a row of seven that borders our front yard also was badly damaged along with lilac bushes and apple boughs. When nature prunes her shrubs and trees, it is done with a vicious hand.

I have often heard of picturesque speech but yesterday the phrase, "Make the fur fly," became more picturesque than I would have it.

Four big cats that were either dumped at our place or left when a family moved away have come to our farm. One is a Persian cat and unfortunately became involved in a fight with a big orange and white striped one. They chose our front step to settle their argument.

Since I was sitting in a sofa chair at the window, I became an unwilling witness. The fight no doubt had been brewing for some time for I heard snarling noises somewhere near the house but thought the Persian seemed at peace sitting on the step. In an instant the striped cat leaped over the iron grillwork and attacked. The noise jolted me to attention. That is when I literally saw the fur fly. Great tufts of it. The wind caught some of the fur and it sailed away much like milkweed floss sails in an autumn wind.

Claws flailed through the air, bodies were hurled against the railing with a loud thud that almost would seem to break bones while wild cat screams rent the air. They sounded like banshees wailing at my door.

I knocked on the window but neither cat heard nor dared to look in my direction. They carried the fight down the steps, rolling and tumbling with fur flying.

Before I could get to the door, the fight ended just as abruptly as it had begun. Each cat ran in a different direction and I wondered what they had settled. At least they spared me the grim task of picking up the pieces.

Farming has become a night operation in our area for those who can get into the fields since the show has disappeared somewhat. The ground freezes at night so those who have corn left in the fields have been working with their machines in an attempt to get it harvested.

This works for corn harvest but The Farmer has not attempted combining milo at night. If the ground freezes, it freezes the heads into the mud and the loss would be even greater. However, by leaving the grain in the field until spring, there is also danger of the grain molding in the heads.

An ideal situation would be if the fair weather holds until the first of the year and the fields dry out enough so the machines could go without any trouble. But at this time of year such conditions are not very likely. For many a farmer, the problem will be a carry-over into spring.

While problems for The Farmer continue, I occupy my time by beginning the Christmas baking. Minced meat bars, all nutty and crisp, are stored in the deep freeze. This week I plan to make sugar cookies cut into fancy shapes. They can be frosted and decorated later. Once they are baked, it is not difficult to get them fancied up for the holidays. Or perhaps I may have second thoughts and bake and frost them all at one time then store them in the deep freeze. Past experience tells me I will run out of steam as the Christmas season draws closer. The more I get done beforehand, the more I will enjoy the holidays.

JAMES RESTON The World May Have A Chance

LONDON — The end of the year is a time for summing up and looking forward, and since Arnold Toynbee, the British historian, has been keeping book on the human race for most of his 83 years, it seemed reasonable to look him up in St. James' Square for a personal judgment about where we all now stand.

The old gentleman is a little wispy now, all white hair and wonderful bushy eyebrows, and bright eager eyes, but while he talks ruefully about the human family, he thinks, like a living but disappointed schoolmaster, that maybe the next generation or two may have a chance.

In the last quarter of this century, or the first quarter in the next — he thinks in centuries and continents — he foresees, not another world war, but a great struggle among the advanced industrial nations for the limited natural resources of an over-populated world.

He sees progress toward cooperation among the nations, and toward control of human fertility, but thinks both must go much faster if the nations are to avoid disaster.

He is rather pleased with the recent trends in Germany and the Soviet Union. The Germans, he says, may have come to terms with history, and seem now to have got beyond the dreams of conquest, and the course of revenge.

The Russians have changed too, he thinks, not much but some. Ever since Peter the Great, they have vowed to catch up with the West, but somehow, they always bound forward and then either get tangled in their own contradictions and bureaucracy, or "go to sleep," and find themselves behind the West again.

Now, Toynbee believes, there is at least a temporary change in Moscow. They seem to be considering the possibility that they have more to gain in the world of computers, trade and modern technology by cooperating with the advanced industrial nations than by opposing them in the world of ideology and politics.

This will be a slow process, Toynbee thinks, for the Russians are suspicious and have good historical reasons for being so, but they are concerned about the emergence of China in the East and the envious glances of Communist Eastern Europe at the prosperous West, so they are reaching out to Germany, Japan and the United States for technological help and trade, and this, he thinks, is a good thing.

When he talks about the living generations in the western countries, Toynbee sounds not only doubtful but sad. He welcomes the movement toward European unity, with Britain a part of it. Nationalism is still a very strong force in the world, he says, and most of the people in the western European countries don't like this troubling and complicated movement toward federation.

But, he observes, unification in Europe will go on. Even weak federal experiments like the early American confederacy of separate states have a way of drawing power to the center, and this, he thinks, will happen in Europe — maybe not as close and unified as in the United States or the Soviet Union, but in the end a strong centralized independent European federal union nonetheless.

Toynbee doesn't like what he sees in the western world today. There is, he thinks, an obvious decline in common honesty, an absence of common purpose. He has to lock his doors at night, and even check his bank statements for possible fraud. There is little pride in work. The modern unions are as selfish as the old robber baron owners of the past. Material success and the gross national product are now the aims of the peoples and governments of the western nations, but even in material terms, this is not good enough to compete effectively in the coming age.

As a person, Toynbee says he does not believe in orthodox religion, but as a historian, he thinks nations rise or fall in relation to the moral unity of the family and the moral purpose of the state, and he sees in the west a decline in both.

In this regard, he is outspokenly disappointed in the United States. It was, he says, the New Jerusalem, the great center of both power and idealism, but now, particularly since the war in Vietnam, it seems very much like the other imperial powers, more interested in its power than in its ideals.

Still, he says he has his consolation. Some of the young are rejecting the materialistic goal of life, and turning to simpler ways, and approaching the old and the sick with compassion. Some families, he observes, particularly the Jews, are holding together, and their strength, he predicts, will increase, but on the whole he seems pessimistic about the West, and hopes, not for a revival of orthodox faith, but for an ethical reformation that will come out of the spiritual needs of the contemporary western world.

He will not see this reformation, he says, but he believes in the regeneration of nations, if their leaders will appeal to the ideals of the people and not only to their pocketbooks. Meanwhile, he takes a long view, even of his own life. He is still working on a book on the decline of Byzantium, which he says he first planned in 1910.

C. L. SULZBERGER Soviet Diplomacy Pays Off

PARIS — If one looks back on international developments over the last decade it is impossible to avoid the conclusion that Soviet policy has registered impressive gains. These are now on the road to being punctuated by East-West multilateral conferences of which the Helsinki talks on European security are but the first.

To be sure, since the Cuban confrontation and its blow to Moscow's prestige, there have been other negative developments for the Kremlin. Tension between China and the U.S.S.R. has worsened, causing the Russians to increase their expensive military forces in Asia.

Likewise, the last 10 years have seen the Soviets lose more than they have gained in the Arab world. They suffered vast material losses in the six-day-war. Anti-Russian feeling in Libya waxed. And the blow to Russian influence following expulsion of Moscow's large Egyptian garrison was only fractionally compensated afterwards.

But such defeats have been overbalanced by Brezhnev. The Soviet Navy is now the world's second most effective. The Soviet Army is unequalled in a conventional sense. The Soviet nuclear-missile establishment is approximately on a par with America's and this parity is on the way to being ratified in the SALT negotiations.

There have indeed been temporary setbacks: the 1956 Polish upheaval and Hungarian uprising, the Czechoslovakian occupation of 1968, the troubles with heretical Yugoslavia and independent-minded Rumania. But Yugoslavia is now showing dangerous signs of international discord and potential crisis when President Tito dies, and Rumania is fully aware that its freedom of attitude on foreign matters has rigid limitations.

The courteship of Moscow by France, West Germany and America is wholly endorsed in the west but has split political unit in the North Atlantic area. Today there is a distinct under-the-table rivalry for advantages in the Soviet market and a distinct undercurrent of mutual suspicion between Europe and the U.S.A.

Chancellor Brandt's victory in the West German elections, based on an Ostpolitik accepting a divided Germany and the Berlin Wall, was widely hailed everywhere. Yet it was plainly a gain for Moscow since it formalized Europe's de facto split.

For Moscow the moment was therefore propitious when preliminary talks on a European security conference opened in Helsinki. The idea of this conference was first bruited by Moscow in 1954 and was pushed (with Soviet prodding) by Poland and then by Finland. In 1966 Moscow souped up the project. In 1969-70 NATO first responded with serious counterproposals.

The Helsinki meeting will be followed by exploratory talks in Geneva next month on mutual and balanced force reductions (M.B.F.R.). Formal conferences on each of the twinned subjects will be convened next summer. And the Soviet position has been perceptibly enhanced just as

Butz Retains Agriculture Post

Camp David, Md. (AP) — President Nixon is keeping Earl Butz as agriculture secretary but is replacing Commerce Secretary Peter G. Peterson with South Carolina textile manufacturer Fredrick B. Dent, the White House said Wednesday.

As part of President Nixon's second-term Cabinet shuffle, Peterson will take on a temporary special mission to Europe and Asia, then return to private life.

There were signs that the former Bell and Howell Co. president, formerly of Kearney, Neb., was eased out after losing a bid to become an international economic policymaker and after falling from favor among Nixon's closest advisers.

Embassy Rejected
Sources said Peterson turned down an ambassador's job in Europe before losing his bid to handle international economic policy under Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz who is being given wide economic powers in Nixon's second term.

Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler told newsmen at the Camp David presidential retreat that Peterson's departure results not from a rift with Shultz, but from a "joint decision" between Nixon and the man who succeeded Maurice H. Stans as commerce secretary in February.

Ziegler said Nixon "wanted to use his capabilities to the fullest." But there were indications that Peterson's flamboyant and aggressive style had irked some members of the White House inner circle.

While Butz is being retained in the second-term Cabinet, White House officials said Nixon has ordered a broad shakeup of the Agriculture Department to make it "even more responsive to farmers' needs based upon today's problems."

Changes in key Agriculture Department personnel will come soon as part of the "positive jolt" sought by the President, the officials said.

Campbell Called In

conferred with Nixon at the rainy and fog shrouded mountaintop retreat Wednesday, but it was not clear how this was related to the coming shakeup.

Wednesday's announcements at a helicopter-hangar news conference reduced to two — attorney general and transportation secretary — the Cabinet posts yet to be covered by Nixon in his shuffle.

Word is expected soon that Richard G. Kleindienst will remain as attorney general and that John Volpe will step down as transportation secretary to become ambassador to Italy, the land of his ancestors.

Dent, whose nomination requires Senate confirmation, is a 50-year-old Yale graduate who has been president of Mayfair Mills since 1947.

A native of Cape May, N.J., who now lives in Spartanburg, S.C., Dent also is a director of the General Electric Co. and the South Carolina National Bank, and a trustee of the American Textile Manufacturers Institute.

Sen. Mansfield To Ask Congress To Enact Federal Spending Ceiling

(c) Washington Star-News
Washington — Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield will ask Congress to take the initiative next year and enact a ceiling for federal spending in advance of the annual item-by-item analysis of President Nixon's budget requests.

The 92nd Congress ended in October in a tangle over the same subject. The difference, a crucial difference, was that Nixon sought the spending ceiling at that time, proposing to make any necessary cuts himself, and the Democrats balked.

A ceiling set early in the new Congress — as soon as the administration's budget requests are in hand — would allow Congress to carry out its constitutional responsibility of appropriating money while retaining the right to decide where programs should be cut back, Mansfield said, noting that the spending priorities of the Democrats in Congress often are sharply different from Nixon's. At the same time, Mansfield denied the repeated White House assertion that Congress is made up of big spenders who have blown the lid off the budget.

In the last four Nixon budgets, he said, the administration has run up a deficit of $104.3 billion while Congress has cut presidential budget requests by $20.2 billion.

"I wish we could have cut more," Mansfield said. "But $20.2 billion is not bad and $104.3 billion over four years is bad."

The money issue underscores the continuing debate between Congress and the White House over who should do what. Those who speak of an erosion of congressional power no longer are disputed. It has become an accepted fact: congressional power has indeed eroded. It has taken place slowly over many years.

Mansfield shrugs off talk that the White House has grabbed this power away from a fighting Congress.

"What we have done we have done willingly," he said.

Investment Banker To Be No. 2 At Treasury

(c) Washington Star-News
Washington — William Simon, a New York investment banker, will be nominated as deputy secretary of the Treasury and Edward L. Morgan, a presidential aide, will become assistant secretary in charge of the Treasury Department's law enforcement and tariff programs, the White House announced Wednesday.

Simon will succeed Charis E. Walker as the Treasury's No. 2 official, and Morgan will replace Eugene T. Rossides.

The resignation of Walker and Rossides to return to private life were also announced.

As a senior partner and executive committee member of Salomon Bros., Simon, 45, has specialized in public finance — bond issues by federal, state and local governments.

Salomon Bros. is one of the biggest dealers, underwriters and market-makers in federal, municipal and corporate bonds and other debt securities. He has frequently advised federal, state and local agencies on financing problems.

Simon, a Republican and a contributor to President Nixon's campaign, is a leader in efforts to modernize the securities industry.

Simon graduated from Lafayette college at Easton, Pa., in 1951 and has spent his entire career on Wall Street.

Morgan, who will succeed Rossides as assistant secretary of the Treasury for enforcement, tariff, trade affairs and operations, is a deputy assistant to the President for domestic affairs. In that capacity he is one of three key aides to John D. Ehrlichman, Nixon's top adviser in the domestic area.

Former Addicts Are Making It

Des Moines, Iowa (AP) — Former drug addicts made it through 2,500 drug free days while they were in residence at the Mid Iowa Drug Abuse Council here the past six months, an official says.

As a result, "The need for a quarter of a million dollars worth of larceny, prostitution and drug pushing" was eliminated by MIDAC from April through September, said Richard Freeman, the group's executive director.

LIFE BEGINS AT FORTY:

Some Forgetfulness Is Natural

By ROBERT PETERSON

Question: — "I am 55 and starting to do stupid things. Last summer I couldn't find my passport the last minute and had to cancel the trip, apply for a new one, and wait two weeks. On my return from England I found my old passport in the pocket of a coat I'd put in mothballs and simply can't imagine how it got there. Last week I had a dozen bills to pay. When I sat down to write the checks they mysteriously disappeared. I searched two days and finally found them in my wastebasket with a discarded newspaper. Then yesterday I forgot to go to a luncheon at a neighbor's house, and didn't think of it till supertime. Is this natural? What can one do?"

Answer: — Some forgetfulness is natural as we grow older. Our memory bank is so filled with millions of details that we must make a greater effort to retain facts which are important and essential. Our best bet is to become more methodical and careful. We should set an inflexible rule of keeping all important documents and letters in one desk, and do all our work there rather than in different parts of the house. We should also keep a large pad on the desk on which we write notes to remind ourselves of upcoming events and things to be done. A central work station for doing all mental activity, and for storing all important papers, can work magic in combating middle-age inefficiency.

Question: — "My husband and I recently had a compatible divorce. We had been married 22 years and had lots of friends. Our reasons for divorcing are very personal, and I don't want to discuss them with anyone. Yet I'm shocked to find so many old friends rush up to me saying they've heard we're divorced and then blurt out 'What were the reasons?' Isn't this in very bad taste?"

Answer: — Not if they're old and good friends. When we're very close to someone we feel an intimacy and sense of responsibility toward them. When they're sick we ask, "What's your problem?" When they're unhappy we ask, "Why?" And when they are divorced, it's logical that we want a few crumbs of explanation. I think you should accept the fact that old friends will be curious, and if you really don't want to discuss the divorce say simply, "Our reasons were very personal."

Question: — "You wrote

Power Concern Cancels Contest

Des Moines, Iowa (AP) — The annual Christmas home lighting contest, sponsored for years by the Jaycees and Iowa Power and Light Co., has been cancelled this year.

A power company official said Wednesday one of the reasons is concern for wise use of energy about some poor old man kept alive by medical science. Seems he had been in the hospital for a year and was kept alive by drugs the doctors insisted on giving him even though he was senile, unconscious most of the time and didn't know who he was. That's the situation we face with my dear 85-year-old mother. She lies there month after month. It breaks my heart to visit her for she doesn't recognize me. Bills are running over $800 a month and doctors say there's no chance of recovery. Yet they keep her alive with transfusions and drugs. Am I a cruel, unloving daughter to wish the doctors would let nature take its course?"

Answer: — No. Greater compassion is shown when we let such patients slip peacefully away, than when we keep them breathing long after life has ceased to have any meaning. We need a new code of medical ethics which permits elderly terminal patients a graceful natural exit when all hope is gone.

No Back Taxes Due On KIA Pay Previously Listed As POWs, MIAs

(c) Newhouse News Service
Washington — The Internal Revenue Service said that no back taxes will be due on the salaries of dead servicemen who have been listed as prisoners of war or missing in action in Vietnam.

The IRS said it will "amplify" a ruling it issued last February which raised the spectre of such taxes for the families of POWs and MIAs whose status may be changed to KIA — killed in action — if they are not found alive at war's end. The amplification, the IRS said, "will make it clear" that Revenue Ruling 72-53 "does not apply" to such cases.

Although IRS Commissioner Johnnie M. Walters insists that the IRS had no intention of collecting back income taxes on the servicemen's compensation from his widow or relatives, the announcement was hailed as a victory by leaders of the National League of Families of Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia.

Error Seen
"They have seen the error of their ways and realized it would be extremely bad public relations," said Mrs. Iris Powers, chairman of the league's repatriation, rehabilitation and readjustment committee. "I'm sure the Navy has been hitting them from all sides over this, and our lawyers have been calling them about it."

"They told us they were trying to make an administrative change but that we might have to go to Congress for it," she added. "We're very happy."

Walter S. McLin, a Florida attorney who heads an American Bar Association committee formed to furnish legal assistance to the families of POWs and MIAs said Tuesday's IRS announcement eliminated a major question surrounding the tax obligations of POW and MIA families.

Memorandum Received
As late as last Nov. 1, McLin said, all Navy legal assistance officers received a memorandum entitled "Tax Notes: POW, MIA, KIA." It said: "Revenue Ruling 72-53, IRS 1972-15, holds that where an actual date of death is known, that date is considered the date of death for federal income tax purposes. (This is not changed by the fact that the wife may have been paid her husband's pay and allowances up to the date that a determination concerning his status is made). The income received after his actual date of death is income to the wife.

She can file as a surviving spouse for two years, then as head of household or single person, depending on the circumstances."

"That meant the wife had to pay back taxes," McLin declared. He said sources in the Navy Judge Advocate's Office had verified this when he sought to determine the tax obligations of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Frankie Ford, whose husband was recently removed from the POW list and reclassified as KIA when the Navy learned he had died in 1968 while a prisoner in North Vietnam.

Although the pay of the POW or MIA serviceman is exempt from federal income taxes, the controversy centered only on the taxability of funds paid Mrs. Ford after her husband's death.

An IRS attorney familiar with the problem said an act of Congress would be required to exempt from taxes the money paid a POW-MIA serviceman's family after his death.

Roads Are Beginning To Lead Away From Rome

Rome (AP) — Roads are beginning to lead away from Rome. Unable to cope with bumper-to-bumper frustration in its historic center, the city this week began an experiment that makes it easier to leave town and more difficult to get in. Those who drive in will find themselves trapped in one of seven sections in the city's center, hard to move to another section. Roads will lead them away from Rome before they can get to another part in the inner core. In New York it would be like allowing a driver to cruise freely on Fifth Avenue but leading him around to a tour of Queens if he wanted to go to Park Avenue just two blocks from Fifth. Traffic Commissioner Luigi Pallottini, who instituted the plan, calls it a rationing of the historic center, where even chariots had difficulty in centuries past.

Convictions Upheld By Tie Vote May Be Appealed—Ruling

Washington (AP) — The Supreme Court Wednesday gave prisoners whose convictions are upheld by a tie vote the right to appeal again to the federal courts with the same legal argument.

The 8-0 decision, announced by Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. in a Tennessee rape case, clarifies a century-old rule by the high court that an appellant loses on an even split.

He still does, said Powell, but he can try again with exactly the same legal argument since the court does not settle legal issues when the justices divide evenly.

Ironically, the convicted rapist Archie Nathaniel Biggers or Nashville, came out a loser. Two lower courts had ruled he was entitled to a new trial, but on a 5-3 vote the Supreme Court upheld his conviction.

Biggers is serving a 20-year sentence.

Back in 1968 the court upheld his conviction by splitting 4-4 on his appeal.

Since then, two federal courts have ruled Biggers's rights were violated by police in the way he was identified by the victim. This time, Tennessee appealed, and five of the justices found that, all things considered, "the identification was reliable."

Marshall Sits It Out

Justices William J. Brennan Jr., William O. Douglas and Potter Stewart dissented. They said the majority was wrong in reversing the findings of fact of two lower courts. Justice Thurgood Marshall did not participate.

Very few cases wind up tied in the nine-man court, and when they do, the appeal sometimes is kept for re-argument in the following term.

Even splits can develop when there is a vacancy on the court or when a justice disqualifies himself, as Marshall did in 1968.

In a second ruling, Justice Douglas publicly disputed any notion that the court is overworked. He called it a myth.

Opinions Decline

While the number of appeals has more than tripled since 1939 when he joined the court, the number of signed written opinions actually has declined, from a 137 to 129, Douglas said.

"We are, if anything, underworked, not overworked," wrote the 73-year-old Justice.

In the 6-3 decision the court held that antitrust appeals could come to it directly from district court. Douglas found "intimations" in Marshall's majority opinion and in a dissent by Stewart that because the Supreme Court is overworked the antitrust appeals should first be routed to the U.S. circuit courts.

On several occasions Chief Justice Warren E. Burger has complained publicly of the mounting work load at the high court. He has hinted that he would welcome congressional action to shrink its jurisdiction.

But Douglas said it would be wrong to keep from the court cases that reflect "the worries and concerns of the American people—high and low."

McCollister Asks Committee Seat

Omaha (AP) — Rep. John Y. McCollister, R-Neb., is bidding for a seat on the House Select Committee on Small Business.

He said he had talked to House GOP Leader Gerald Ford and believed his prospects were good.

The assignment would tie in not only with his work on the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, according to McCollister, but also with a "lifetime interest in the vitality of small business."

'Murder Madness' Is Fought In Ireland

Belfast, Northern Ireland (AP) — William Whitelaw, Britain's chief administrator in Northern Ireland, ordered a new task force of police and soldiers Wednesday to stamp out what he called "murder madness," the assassination squads responsible for more than 100 sectarian killings this year.

The latest victim of the killers, Protestant Samuel White, 32, was found dead on an east Belfast street corner only hours before Whitelaw's announcement. He had been shot in the chest and head and a hood was pulled over his body.

So far this year at least 105 others — 70 Roman Catholics and 35 Protestants — have been slain in much the same way, often after being bound and tortured, burned with cigarettes, branded or had their bones broken.

No Connection

These victims had no direct connection with the bomb and bullet attacks against British troops by terrorists seeking to reunite Ireland. Incidents involving troops and terrorists have taken most of the 655 lives lost in the past three years.

The murder victims, however, are sought out in the dead of night, on street corners or in their homes, by assassination squads seeking to mete out revenge for some local grievance. Often they have been reprisals for an earlier killing in the rival religious community.

Whitelaw told newsmen he had been appalled by the "senseless, brutal and calculated murders," and was "utterly determined that everything possible must be done to hunt down those responsible and bring them to justice."

Murder Task Force

The special murder task force of police and military police is to operate in affected areas like east Belfast, checking civilians there who keep odd hours, display edginess after a night's work or show undue interest in morning radio and newspaper reports.

Whitelaw appealed to all citizens to cooperate with this effort.

"Shielding someone responsible for this murder madness is only going to delay the day for which we all yearn—when Northern Ireland is once again at peace."

HANDBAG . . . of Mrs. Cecilia Whitelaw is searched by a British soldier in Belfast.

Main Issue Is Roman Catholic 'Special Position'

Dublin (AP) — The main issue is the Roman Catholic Church's "special position" in Ireland, but voters in the nation's referendum Thursday have a chance to strengthen the government's hand in working for a peaceful end to Irish partition.

The 1.75 million voters will be out to approve or reject two changes in their 1937 constitution.

One would lower the voting age from 21 to 18 and bring Ireland into line with suffrage requirements of most of Europe.

The other, more controversial change would remove two subsections of Article 44 giving the Catholic Church its special position in Irish affairs.

Cook Giving Up Post

New York (AP) — Chauncey W. Cook, who served as both chairman and president of General Foods Corp. since last April, announced he was relinquishing the president's office to James L. Ferguson.

Three Items May Be Added To Milk Marketing Order

Chicago (UPI) — The U. S. Department of Agriculture Wednesday recommended adding advertising, research and promotion plans to the Nebraska-Western Iowa milk marketing order.

The recommendations are based on evidence from a public hearing held in Bridgeton, Mo., Oct. 18.

The USDA said advertising, research and promotion of milk under federal orders was authorized by law in 1971, and 18 of the present 62 federal milk orders have been amended to add such programs.

The proposed program would be financed by deductions of five cents a hundredweight on all milk that producers deliver to the market each month, before returns are paid to producers.

The funds would be withheld by the market administrator and turned over to an agency of local producers to be expended. When requested, quarterly refunds would be made to any producers not wishing to participate.

Revenue-Sharing Checks Will Be Slimmer

Washington (AP) — The Treasury Department disclosed Wednesday that a large number of state and local governments will be getting smaller revenue-sharing checks than was estimated earlier.

The Treasury said that thousands of local government units will discover that a downward adjustment of 50% or more has been made in their first checks, due to be mailed Friday.

The first revenue-sharing checks, totaling $2.7 billion, will launch a five-year, $30-billion program enacted by Congress late in the session. The first checks represent payment for the first six months of 1972.

Funeral Service Scheduled For Oscar Holquist

Omaha (AP) — Funeral services will be at 2:30 p.m. Thursday at Augustana Lutheran Church for an 80-year-old retired vice president of Omaha's First National Bank, Oscar Holquist. He died Monday.

Mr. Holquist was a bank employee for 54 years before his retirement in 1960. He was a former board member of the American Institute of Banking.

Survivors include two sons and two sisters.

Checks will be sent to 35,993 state and local governments. Treasury officials announced. Another 1,620 local governments have been designated to get checks but the Treasury is not sending them out because it has not received the name of a local official in charge.

Special Survey

The reason for the changes since the bill was before Congress was a special survey by the Census Bureau updating 1967 tax efforts of state and local governments, one of the factors in the complex distribution formula.

Treasury officials said about 6,000 units of government will find adjustments have been made downward by 50% or more, totaling $51 million. Another, 6,100 units will get a downward adjustment ranging from 10 to 50% totaling downward $112 million over-all.

Of the units to get bigger checks, 7,000 will receive 50% or more or $54.7 million and 10,350 will get from 10 to 50% more or $112 million.

Other Changes

The Treasury said the other changes range between plus and minus 10%, affecting 9,300 government units and a total of $40 million.

These figures include small units with populations under 2,500.

The Treasury, as it did earlier this week, urged state and local government officials to be patient if they believe the money they will receive is incorrect. It said that it will have all the data on which the money was distributed available early next year and, until that time, no adjustments will be made.

The Treasury gave no individual figures on first payments and said the detailed information will go to Congress first. By Thursday afternoon, it expects to advise each congressman of the amounts to be paid in his district.

What you give isn't nearly as important as why.

What was the best gift you ever received? Most likely it was something that someone considered carefully before giving it to you. After all, the best gifts are usually the ones that the most thought was put into...not necessarily the most money. When you put careful thought into selecting gifts this Christmas you should also think about a more convenient way to pay for them. We'd like to suggest that you shop with your BankAmericard.

Think of it as money.

It's welcomed by stores everywhere so you can be sure to find the gifts for the people you've thought so carefully about. It can help save money at pre-holiday sales. And, help you solve a last-minute gift problem. You'll have receipts for every purchase, and the option of convenient monthly payments. If you're not already carrying a BankAmericard, visit us soon for an application...and our best wishes for a Merry Christmas.

Attorneys General For Restoring Death Penalty

Coronado, Calif. (AP) — The National Association of Attorneys General recommended Wednesday that the death penalty be restored for certain crimes.

"Each state would determine what the offense would be," said Oklahoma Atty. Gen. Larry Derryberry, chairman of a volunteer committee of 11 state attorneys general that presented the recommendation.

The resolution asked that "the death penalty be provided as a legal punishment where it is appropriate by the Congress and the state legislatures within their respective jurisdictions."

Chrysler Is Raising Car Prices

Detroit (AP) — Chrysler Corp., which raised its prices an average of $20 a car on Oct. 17, boosted them another $40 Wednesday, thus using up virtually all of a $60.10 increase the Federal Price Commission approved for the auto firm.

Chrysler said the $60.10 grant was necessary to defray costs of federally required safety, bumper and emissions control items on its 1973 cars.

Chrysler said that even after the federal government gave its go-ahead for the $60.10 increase, the firm initially boosted its prices only $20 per unit "because of the competitive market situation."

The increases range from none on the Plymouth Regent V8 station wagon to $100 on the LeBaron two-door and four-door hardtop models.

Chrysler's latest adjustment in the auto pricing field came only a few days after the Dec. 1 Price Commission action giving General Motors and Ford permission to increase prices to cover costs of government-mandated safety and emission standards.

The GM boost averaged $54 a vehicle and Ford's averaged $62.55 per car.

Grade Schools' Plans Fouted Up By Bird Thieves

Kearney (AP) — The holiday season has lost some of its luster for students at the Pleasant Hill School just north here.

Their Thanksgiving meal was spoiled when thieves broke into the rural grade school and made away with the turkey which was to have been prepared.

Adding insult to injury, thieves broke in again Tuesday and fouled up Christmas plans by taking the Christmas turkey.

Young Tiger Bites Paar

West Milford, N.J. (AP) — Television performer Jack Paar, filming a television sequence in which John F. Kennedy Jr. was to appear, was bitten on the wrist by a tiger at a wildlife preserve here Wednesday.

A spokesman for Jungle Habitat, a drive-through zoo, said Paar suffered a torn wrist and was treated at a clinic and released.

Young Kennedy was not involved in the incident.

New Jersey Police Official Says Lottery Used By Illegal Operators

AP Wirephoto

Trenton — The superintendent of the New Jersey State Police testified here Wednesday that organized crime had begun using the new daily New Jersey lottery as a means of determining the winning combination in the daily illegal numbers game in New Jersey.

Col. David B. Kelly told the legislative gambling study commission that instead of driving the illegal numbers game out of business, the daily state-operated lottery was in fact enabling the number operators to determine and publicize their daily winner on the same day.

According to Kelly, the illegal numbers game also promises a far bigger payoff: $250 for a 50-cent bet, while the daily lottery offers only a $25 payoff if a winning ticket has at least three consecutive digits of the five-digit winning number.

The winning five-digit daily lottery prize is $2,500.

The colonel's disclosures, given at the sixth in a series of public hearings conducted by the commission, caused its chairman, State Sen. Wayne Dumont Jr., a Warren County Republican, to shake his head in amazement, while other commission members simply sat in the assembly chamber and grinned.

What do doctors recommend for patients in pain?

Doctors all over the country dispense over 50,000,000 of these tablets to their patients each year.

There are many medications a physician or dentist can prescribe for pain. Some are narcotic, many are available only on prescription. But there is one pain reliever, available without prescription, doctors dispense again and again...Anacin.

Each year, doctors give over 50,000,000 Anacin tablets to their patients in pain. If doctors think enough about Anacin to dispense all these tablets, what better recommendation can you ask when you are in pain?

You see, Anacin contains more of the pain reliever doctors recommend most than any other leading tablet.

Headache and dental pain is relieved incredibly fast; minor pains of arthritis are dependably eased for hours; even the aches and pains of colds and flu respond to Anacin. So the tension and depression that can be caused by such pain will be relieved too. And millions take Anacin without stomach upset.

When you're in pain, why don't you follow the practice of so many doctors and take the tablet a doctor might give you in his own office. Take Anacin®.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SIDNEY OMARR

Forecast For Thursday

Thursday am star inside no 3 astrological forecast star sign had Libra, although often indecisive, seems to know how to get to point of destination. Natives of this zodiacal sign are sensitive, but strong, artistic and practical. Libra is in love with love, drawn to Aries and Aquarius and often deals with cancer in matters of career. Where money is concerned, Libra persons seem able to ring bell of profit with Scorpio.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Versatile approach gains objective. Friendly manner now wins allies. All is not milk and honey. Contractual dispute is indicated. Marriage or business partner expresses ideas which conflict with your own. Find alternative procedure.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Check proposition which seems a "sure thing" in actuality, there are flaws. Applies to personal as well as business relationships. One who is supposed to perform basic services may have other ideas.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You get welcome chance for changes, excitement of discovery. Virgo could be involved. Accent is on romance, creativity, relationship which is growing in intensity. Nothing now is apt to happen halfway.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Lie low. Time is on your side. You can afford to play waiting game. Permit male partner close associate to take lead. You require co-operation of family members. There has been minor upheaval at home base.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Encounter truth without running from it. See people situations as they actually exist. You are stronger than might be apparent. Know it and act accordingly. One who should know better acts in contrary manner.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Money finds its way to you. Financial decisions are featured. Press for favorable arrangement. Strive to enhance security. Consult one who has benefit of experience. Accept responsibility. Invest in your own ability.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Best to round out project, assignment — don't try new tricks, gimmicks. Stick to what is familiar. Family members, home environment — these are also spotlighted. Artists could play significant role.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Hold off on short journey. You may get better advantage by waiting for call message. You have something of value to offer. Know it and refuse to be intimidated. What occurs behind scenes works to your advantage.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) What appears to be a sure profit could divide to a break-even point or less. Be aware of hidden costs. One who purportedly does favor may ask for much in return. You get nothing for nothing.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Doors open and you gain additional chances for advancement. Horizons are enlarged. Your view now enables you to see areas previously blocked. Sagittarius could be in picture. One in authority makes room for you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You sidestep obstacles. You are able to make contracts which develop into meaningful relationships. See and be seen. The future is now. Mainline that attitude and you will achieve goal.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Not wise to listen to friends whose investments are concerned. Key now is to be analytical. Arrive at your own conclusions. Basic change is in offing. Opposite sex is involved. Be cautious. In signing any legal document.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are introspective, a spiritual person, concerned with the rights of underdog. Much travel indicated this month along with relief of emotional pressure. Your views will be sought and you will have greater opportunity for self-expression.

This Week's Health Tip

Regular cleansing of the skin is desirable for both health and cosmetic reasons says the Nebraska Medical Association.

Cleansing removes oily secretions, sweat, dead skin dirt, cosmetics and some bacteria. This process can be carried out most quickly and effectively with water and a mild soap or detergent.

The Nebraska Medical Association says many factors influence the degree of dryness of the skin: geographical location, time of year, relative humidity in living and working conditions and excessive use of soaps and detergents. Some people may find that regular use of a cleansing cream or lotion with occasional soap and water cleansing is more comfortable for dry skin than washing regularly with soap and water followed by the application of a moisturizing cream.

The Nebraska Medical Association suggests you protect your skin as best you can in dry weather.

LBJ Giving Home, Acreage To Public

Washington (AP) — Former President Lyndon B. Johnson is donating his home and more than 200 acres of his Texas Hill Country ranch to the public, Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton said Wednesday.

Johnson and his wife will continue to live in the ranch house, which was the "Texas White House" from 1963 through early 1969.

Morton said the National

Funeral Rites Are Scheduled For Dr. Larson

Omaha (AP) — Services will be Friday for Herbert J. Larson, 57, an Omaha psychologist.

He died Tuesday during open heart surgery at an Omaha hospital.

Larson was head of the Pease Rehabilitation Center of Goodwill Industries and taught psychology at Creighton University.

He was a past president of Nebraska Rehabilitation Association and was editor of the association's newspaper.

Park Service would begin promptly on a theme to interpret the "entire life of a president."

Morton said other gifts by Johnson to the National Park Foundation have enabled the park service to acquire a 47-acre tract and log cabin in nearby Johnson City which the President's grandfather, Sam Ealy Johnson, used as a cattle trail drive headquarters and a one-room Junction School which Johnson attended when he was 4 years old.

Morton, Park Service Director George B. Hartzog Jr. and an aide to President Nixon, John Whitaker, recently visited Johnson and completed plans for Johnson's direct donation of 201.37 acres including his ranch house and adjacent buildings and eight grazing and cropland fields. About four miles of the acreage fronts on the north bank of the Pedernales River.

In 1960, Congress authorized the Lyndon B. Johnson National Historic Site, consisting of Johnson's boyhood home in Johnson City and his birthplace in Stonewall, located on the eastern edge of the LBJ Ranch. These two properties comprise about 7.65 acres.

Another in a series of Public Nights will be held Friday night at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln's Behlen Observatory located at the Mead Field Laboratory.

Weather permitting visitors to the Observatory will be able to look at the Moon and at Saturn through the 30-inch Behlen Telescope during the Public Night from 7 to 10 p.m.

The Public Night will not be held if weather conditions are overcast.

Beer Favored

Des Moines (UPI) — Officials at Iowa's three state universities said they have experienced a favorable response to allowing beer sales in student unions and encountered virtually no problems.

Allende Told Soviets Back 'Liberation'

Moscow (AP) — President Nikolai V. Podgorny told Chile's president Wednesday night that the Soviet Union is a "strong defender" of all Latin-American countries that "struggle for national and social liberation."

Speaking at a Kremlin banquet for Salvador Allende, Podgorny recounted the Chilean's difficulties in ascending to power as Latin America's first freely elected Marxist leader, and added:

"You are not alone in your struggle. On your side are the sympathy and support of the Soviet Union, your brother Socialist countries and the solidarity of all contemporary progressive forces."

Donkey Fuel Costly

Tokyo (AP) — Veterinarian Teru Iwamoto rides his donkey around town because "in heavy traffic it is faster to get around on a donkey than in a car." He finds, however, that it is more expensive to fuel the donkey than an automobile.

ANYBODY THAT HAS BEEN FOLLOWING OUR DIALOGUE KNOWS that we are of the conviction the best economic answer for the common man is to control his own destiny by recognizing the force of long term compound interest gains and to integrate it with the tremendous death and disability benefits, as well as retirement, available under social security.

We have just finished reading a book that points up the inadequacy of conventional medical protection and the tragic dilemma most of us could suffer with the aid of the cruel hand of fate. This can all happen in spite of the fact that the maximum disability protection under social security for a youthful family man is $164,489.

Most young families starting out will find that life insurance and health care protection will approximate five hundred dollars a year overhead. If, instead of diluting equity every year, they were to invest this sum in a bond fund, paying seven percent, then it could grow as follows: Worth $3,067.55 at the end of five years, $7,391.55 at the end of ten years, $21,931 at the end of twenty years and $152,824 at the end of forty-five years.

Bonds represent corporate indebtedness to the holder and are generally considered secure and reliable. We know of one bond fund that has been earning over seven percent and costs nothing to acquire or redeem. We have a minimum charge of $25.00 an hour that could suffice for anybody that cared to put this into effect.

Father Walks 40 Miles In Snow, Sub-Zero Cold To Save 3 Sons

Calgary, Alta. (UPI) — Fred Kopmann, driven by a father's will through 40 miles of snow and sub-zero temperatures to save his three young sons from death, was hospitalized Wednesday with severe frostbite and possible gangrene.

His three sons, with him in an ordeal which began last Sunday when his four-wheel-drive vehicle became stuck in 18 inches of snow, were released earlier from the hospital. The frostbite which they suffered while waiting for their father proved to be minor.

Kopmann, 39, a Calgary paper hanger, was expected to remain in Foothills Hospital here for at least two weeks. He originally was treated at another hospital in the Banff resort area near the scene of the ordeal but returned here because "I wanted to get home and put my things together."

His trip into the Rocky Mountains, along a seldom used forestry road, began late Sunday when, with temperatures below zero, his vehicle became stuck and attempts to get it moving proved unsuccessful.

He decided he and his sons

— Rolf, 11, Michael, 9, and Frank, 6, would wait in the vehicle until help came but, after five hours, it ran out of gas and there was no power for its heater.

After talking to and shaking the boys to keep them awake through the night, Kopmann left the youngsters in the vehicle and headed out on his own.

"I headed north, thinking the highway was just a few miles away, but it was way out," he said. Many times he said he was tempted to give in to exhaustion as he battled through the snow.

"I would feel my eyes closing and know that I was lapsing into unconsciousness. I would be glad that it would all be over soon. Then I would think of those children waiting for me... depending on me... and I would get up again."

Fifteen hours later and 40 miles away, Kopmann reached a power plant with an emergency telephone. A Royal Canadian Mounted Police helicopter was dispatched, but was able to reach the boys only Tuesday morning due to fog and ice crystals which delayed its landing twice.

The boys told their rescuers they knew their father would find help and that they had stayed awake the whole time. RCMP spokesmen said that despite the boys' confidence they were astounded the children survived the ordeal.

"It's amazing they are alive. It's an incredible survival story," a police spokesman said.

19 Sailors Are Charged By The Navy

San Diego, Calif. (AP) — The Navy brought charges Wednesday against 19 young black sailors taken off the carrier Kitty Hawk after a two-day racial disturbance while the huge ship headed for Vietnam.

A congressional inquiry into the incident began, meanwhile with the Kitty Hawk's skipper testifying behind closed doors.

After more than three hours, Rep. Floyd V. Hicks, D-Wash., emerged to say his House Armed Services subcommittee had agreed to listen also to the accused men.

"They have been invited to testify, but no time has been set yet for their appearance," Hicks told newsmen. He called the testimony of Capt. Marland W. Townsend "very frank and enlightening," but declined to elaborate.

Hicks said he and Reps. Alexander Pirnie, R-N.Y., and W.C. Daniel, D-Va., plan to go aboard the 80,000-ton carrier for a private inspection Thursday.

Bomb Removed

Boston (AP) — A homemade explosive device containing at least two sticks of dynamite was safely removed from the basement level of the Boston Naval Hospital, officials said.

Most Park Officials Against Off-Road Vehicles In Parks

(c) Washington Star-News
Washington — A survey of federal and state park superintendents and public land managers has reported that most would ban off-road vehicles from public land unless governments are prepared to spend money to protect the environment from damage.

In a related development, the Interior Department's Fish and Wildlife Service ordered three snowmobile trails closed in wildlife refuges in the northern Midwest because of evidence that snowmobiles "do disturb wildlife and harm wildlife habitat."

The survey indicates that people who manage public land are most troubled by trail bikes, minibikes, all-terrain vehicles, snowmobiles and dune buggies, in that order.

Those surveyed had the strongest objections against the trail bikes.

Only 15% of more than 125 land managers surveyed say they would be inclined to permit continued trial and minibike use. Fifty-four per cent of those surveyed would ban all off-road vehicles unless they get funds to construct separate facilities and trails "they feel necessary to protect the environment from unacceptable degradation," the survey said.

Electrical Code Series Scheduled

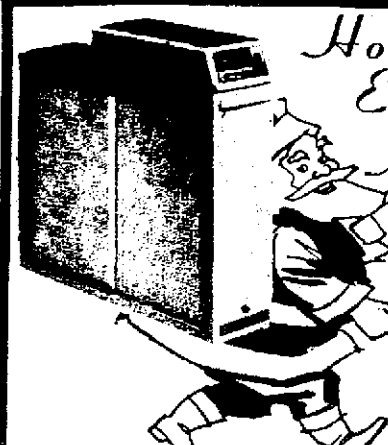

Omaha (AP) — A conference series to explain the national electrical code devised by the National Fire Prevention Assn. will be held in Lincoln starting next month.

Sponsored by the Nebraska-Iowa Electrical Council, the Nebraska chapter of the National Electrical Contractors Assn. and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, the conference consists of 10 evening sessions on succeeding Mondays beginning Jan. 8.

In 1968, according to a spokesman for the North Central Region of the Fish and Wildlife Service, three snowmobile trails were established in area wildlife refuges because of the rising public demand for places to use the vehicles. "It was an experiment," he added.

Last week, the experiment ended. The trails were closed because "they were interfering with the wildlife and, after all, the primary mission of a wildlife refuge is to protect the animals."

Hallam Plant Clean Air Cost Said $9.9 Million

Columbus (AP) — The Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD) said Wednesday it will spend about $9.9 million to meet Lancaster County air quality control standards at its Shelton Power Station near Hallam.

Modification of the coal handling equipment and installation of environmental equipment to control fly ash emission from the stack is expected to be completed by late 1974, the company said.

Modification of coal handling equipment is necessary because Sheldon Station will become a 100% coal burning plant because natural gas is not available, according to NPPD assistant general manager H. J. Dager.

Some $7.3 million is expected to be spent on the environmental modification of the plant, the firm said, with the remaining $2.6 million for coal handling modification.

Dager said NPPD anticipates the plant eventually will burn low sulphur coal.

NPPD will add three conveyors, crusher facilities, a new dead storage reclaim area, a coal sampling system, dust suppression equipment and ash water facilities.

The bulk of the money needed for environmental modification will go toward materials and labor for the mechanical equipment, work on plant structure, breeching and insulation and electrical installations to operate the equipment. The remainder will go for engineering, construction management, addition of labor and contingency items, it was reported.

The $9.9 million figure does not include items such as financing cost, interest during construction, management and other overhead costs, NPPD noted.

Engineering work on the modification is under way, with construction expected to begin in mid-1973.

Contracts for acquiring a portion of the coal handling equipment are expected to be let this month. Contracts for portions of the environmental equipment will be let early next year, it was reported.

BN Approves Plan To Spend $135 Million

Directors of Burlington Northern Inc. have approved plans to spend $135 million in 1973 for new rolling stock and other capital improvements, with provisions for acquisition of 30 locomotives and 650 box cars prior to January 1st.

Robert W. Downing, president, said the 26,000-mile railroad and its subsidiaries, the Colorado and Southern and Fort Worth & Denver, will acquire 66 road locomotives, 15 switch engines, 50 cabooses, and 1,390 freight cars.

Downing said that the 650 additional box cars "will strengthen our capability to handle the record volume of grain and forest products shipments we have experienced in 1972."

In addition to the new freight cars, Burlington Northern shops will rebuild or modify 550 box cars, 400 covered hopper cars, 400 open hoppers, and 300 bulkhead flat cars at a cost of approximately $8 million, he said.

Burlington officials in Omaha said Wednesday they could not tell what effect these plans would have on the shop and switching yards in the Lincoln-Havelock area.

Oil Gas Unit To Hike Levy To Two Mills

Sidney (AP) — The Nebraska Oil and Gas Conservation Commission announced Wednesday a decision which would raise the present 1.75 mills per dollar conservation levy to two mills effective Jan. 1, 1973.

The levy is applied on the dollar value at the well of all crude oil, dry gas and casing-head gas produced, saved, sold or transported from Nebraska production.

The increase became necessary because the present levy does not provide an income to the commission sufficient to meet current budget expenses.

Commission director Paul Roberts said the increase, first in about three years, was due primarily to the decrease in production in the state.

The commission's budget is set each year by the legislature, but no state funds are provided for its operation. Funding is entirely contingent on the levy.

Snow Cancels Talk On Cold Weather Injuries

Portland, Ore. (AP) — A snowstorm forced the Oregon Museum of Science and Industry to postpone a scheduled lecture by Dr. Ted Lathrop of Oregon City, an expert on cold weather injuries, frostbite, chilblain, snow blindness and hypothermia.

Bankruptcy Financing Lucrative

Vancouver, B.C. (UPI) — People laughed when Joe Hargitt began financing divorces, but Joe was one up on the skeptics as he watched his effort grow into a successful franchise company.

Now the ebullient Hargitt has begun another unlikely financial enterprise and no one is quite sure how to react, because this time he's financing bankruptcies.

For such are the paradoxes of modern life that a legal declaration of insolvency can cost up to $1,000.

"People had been phoning us asking if we financed bankruptcies," said Hargitt, 38. "I'd say you're nuts. I figured if someone goes bankrupt and I give him the money, I'm going to be listed as one of the creditors and when he goes down the tube, so do I, with everyone else."

More experienced advice, however, assured him that was not the case. So when two representatives of a local company that handles bankruptcies approached him to ask if he would finance some of their bankrupts, he decided to go ahead.

Hargitt's advertising campaign consists of a discreet advertisement in the business personals of the city's two major daily newspapers: "Personal bankruptcies financed. Nothing down. Only $35 a month," it reads.

Response has been steady, if not overwhelming.

"We're averaging about four applications a day and over the past month we've handled about 60," Hargitt said in an interview.

The bankruptcy applicants are often middle-class wage earners who sometimes have accumulated enormous debts but, because of their high incomes, are ineligible for the $50 government-assisted bankruptcy service for those earning less than $3,000 per year.

Hargitt is the first to admit that his business history is not without blemish — indeed, his past as a used car salesman has earned him some seven years of penal reform in Canadian institutions.

Now, however, he's gone legitimate, and even envisions himself as a mini-crusader for the downtrodden little man unable to crack the glacial rules of the established money-lenders.

For security, he usually requires the applicant to have a guarantor. For reward, he turns over a neat 12% profit.

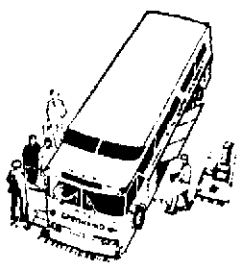

"How do you repossess a divorce? You don't. And you can't repossess a bankrupt," he said. "So we're just taking the same approach with the bankruptcy service as we do with the divorces."

"We gamble with them. And if our write-off is the same as the divorces — which in the four years we've been operating that service is less than five per cent — we'll continue to go along with it."

by

Stan

Brisk cold mornings around here. Nonetheless I am out of the downy like an early songbird. Plugging in the coffee. Caroling in the hall. "Love is a funny thing. In romantic Sausalito (Rock Center of the University) waterbeds and astrology. I ran into the girl who lost 28 pounds by falling in love. She said "I've gained it all back again." When this muffin fell madly in love, she began to lose weight. She was wasting away.

All she could say was, "I'm so much in love!" I said "Who is this man?" Maybe we could rent him out. Think of all the dames who are trying to lose weight. Well eventually love cooled down. I don't mean she's not in love. It's just not the same volcano. Gone to Jello, you might say. So she put back the 28. (Haven't seen the man I wonder what he looks like.)

I cannot recall that love turned me into a walking skeleton. (But I don't remember so well since they paved over Memory Lane. Made it a four-lane freeway.)

Love has been studied by scientists and soothsayers. By poets and peasants. Not many answers.

A German doctor studied love among geese. He said love is three parts hand holding and one part flinging dishes at your ever-loving.

He said "When goose and gander band together, not love but aggression draws them into a unit."

("Prosit!" said Herr Doktor. "Zo I love you." And he hit his wife over the head with the frying pan.)

So this girl with the regained 28 pounds doesn't know why she got it back.

"Of course, I'm still in love," she said. "I guess."

In the stirring days when she was shedding pound by pound, things were hectic. He didn't call me last night. I'll never call him again! "I saw him yesterday! Oh, my God, it was wonderful." She said: "Do you think a person can believe what a man says? Now he said to me etc. etc."

Then they set up housekeeping. The pounds returned. I said, "Better start a few fights, luv. You're getting a cruiser stern."

The Herr Doktor raised

geese and the geese raised hell with each other. He noted: "If the aggression between the pair wanes, they bring in a new gander."

The new gander if brought in to be mean. It steps up the aggression. (Hard to be mad at the same person all the time.)

The three sit around hussing at each other. Enjoying life to the bitterest end.

Lincoln church news is carried on a special page in the "Sunday Journal and Star."

Preventive Dentistry Programs Slated

Three shows broadcast over the ETV network during December and a between semesters caravan of University of Nebraska-Lincoln dental educators visiting five communities will bring Nebraska dentists latest information of preventive dentistry.

The TV programs will be aired at 11:30 a.m. on Dec. 15-22-29. The NU College of Dentistry teachers will visit Kearney, North Platte, Scottsbluff, Valentine and Norfolk Jan. 8-12.

The program on preventive dentistry, sponsored by the College of Dentistry and University Extension Division, is being underwritten by the Lincoln Area Health Education Center of the Veteran's Administration Hospital.

The television programs have been designed by course director Dr. Gerald J. Tussing, chairman of the department of periodontics, to be of interest to the general public as well as dentists and their assistants.

The caravan programs, which will be held from 2 to 10 p.m. in the five communities, will be clinical presentations for dentists and their assistants.

The caravan schedule includes the Kearney Holiday Inn on Jan. 8; the North Platte Holiday Inn on Jan. 9; Nebraska Western College on Jan. 10; the Valentine Public Library on Jan. 11 and Norfolk Holiday Inn on Jan. 12.

'Do Nothing People' Called The Most Dangerous

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Omaha — "The do nothing people—the hermits—are the most dangerous people in America," Nebraska county officials attending the 70th annual convention of the Nebraska Association of County Officials here Wednesday were told.

Judge Philip B. Gilliam, judge of the juvenile court of Denver, told officials that as a judge for 38 years he has seen "fears of the big town."

He said there ought to be more angry people because a major problem facing the nation is "non-involvement with the lives of other people."

"The do nothings don't lie, they just neglect to tell the truth," he said, adding that America will "die if we don't have motivation for living."

Judge Gilliam said one of the reasons he is a happy individual is that he has seen the contrast between good and evil.

"I've seen so much bad that when I see good, it looks great to me," the judge said.

He said that in his experiences in talking to young people he has found that young people like something different, and new, and "decency" is taking with young people "because it is something new in America today."

"When you cease to be good, you cease to be great," he said, explaining that one must believe that he, himself, is a great person and one that he likes.

"Every delinquent I've ever known is a kid who doesn't like himself," he said.

The inner sign of mental illness is when you don't like yourself, he said, adding "When you don't like yourself you destroy yourself."

In other business the legislative committee of the association deferred action on some of the recommendations of the welfare study committee including one that would provide for state administration of the welfare program.

The policy making body of the association decided that due to the scope of the recommendation and recent changes by Congress since the recommendations were made by the study committee, additional study should be given the proposal.

Another welfare proposal on which action was deferred was one proposing that the county's 20% medical cost be reduced by 25% per year year for four years.

The committee approved the proposal that legislation be prepared authorizing the state director of welfare to require control of cost-related items of the nursing home operators.

Also approved was the proposal that board and room facilities be licensed by the state Department of Welfare and that the proprietor of such facilities be given permission to remind occupants of their prescribed medicines, health requirements, etc.

The association rejected the proposal that an office of the election commissioner be created for each county having a population of more than 16,000 inhabitants rather than the $5,000 now provided for in the law.

The committee indicated that since the current law is worded in such a way that the county board in those counties may appoint one if necessary, the change would not be necessary.

Proponents of the proposal had suggested a change since the volume of eligible voters has increased due to lowering the voting age, as well as changes in election laws and resulting additional work for the county clerk.

Across Nebraska

Dr. Devers Honored Upon Retirement

Pierce — Over 500 friends, associates and state officials gathered here to honor Dr. Washington Irving Devers upon his retirement as a longtime physician. Among the honors bestowed upon Dr. Devers were a framed proclamation of "Dr. Devers Day" from the Pierce City Council, greetings and a plaque from the Nebraska Medical Association, and an admiralship in the Nebraska Navy.

Charges Filed In Embezzlement Case

Kearney (UPI) — Embezzlement charges were filed Wednesday in Buffalo County court against Sharon Wright of Odessa. She was accused in connection with the alleged embezzlement of $2,400 from the Montgomery Ward store in Kearney. Kearney police arrested her Saturday and booked her on suspicion of embezzling $2,400 allegedly taken during a six-month period while she was employed in the office of the store.

Sen.-Elect Lewis Resigns Bellevue Post

Bellevue — The Bellevue School Board has accepted the resignation, effective Dec. 22, of State Sen.-elect Frank Lewis. He was elected in the newly created 45th district.

Musical Events Planned At Doane

Crete — Three musical productions are scheduled at Doane College in the near future. Sunday at 8 p.m. the annual Christmas concert will be presented by the concert band, choir and the Varsity Vagabonds. Next Tuesday at 8 p.m. selected applied music students will perform traditional end-of-semester recitals. Thursday, Dec. 14, an all-student concert is scheduled by music majors.

Scottsbluff Firm Low Bidder On Work

Scottsbluff (UPI) — Pullen Construction Co., Scottsbluff, was apparent low bidder Wednesday on the base bid for a new medical building and graduated care unit at Western Nebraska General Hospital. The hospital committee said, however, it was studying an alternative to the base bid. A decision is expected within days the contract probably will be signed in about a week, the committee said. The base bid was $490,000 for the medical building and $77-106 for the graduated care unit.

Hereford Bulls Sell For Average $3,002

Henry — Fifty-eight Hereford bulls were sold by Mid-dlesworth Herefords for a total of $174,150 or an average of $3,002. Charles Neblatt Jr., of Stebbins, Tex., paid a top price of $10,100 for 6M-B4-Cruzeiro-84, tabbed April 14, 1972. In addition, three animals were sold as three-fourths of an animal for $8,600, $8,100 and $8,000. Twenty-three animals brought $2,800 or more.

Omaha Seeks Loan For Bus System Share

Omaha — The city of Omaha will borrow $1.4 million for 30 days or less to pay its share of acquiring a bus system. Finance director Edwin Hewitt said the loan will be repaid with money from the 1973 budget. The City Council, on a six to one vote, authorized the loan.

Juvenile Court Leaving Courthouse

Omaha — Douglas County Juvenile Court offices will be moved out of the courthouse Wednesday to make room for a new courtroom. County officials said the new juvenile court offices will be in the Service Life building at 19th and Farnam streets. Officials said the new juvenile courtroom is necessary because a combination courtroom-office used by Juvenile Court Judge Joseph Moylan will be converted to chambers for a county judge.

Record Low Temperatures Recorded Across Nebraska

Although the calendar says it's still fall, Mother Nature ignored the date and brought record low below zero temperatures to Nebraska Wednesday.

The coldest spot in the state was Valentine where the thermometer dropped to 23 below, the coldest ever to occur there this early. On Nov. 14, 1959, Valentine recorded a low of 22 below.

Other record lows in the state included 18 below at Scottsbluff, bettering a record of eight below set in 1950; and 15 below at North Platte, compared to a record of 12 below set back in 1880.

Cold readings elsewhere in Nebraska included Sidney -21, Alliance and Mullen -18, Imperial, Ainsworth and Chadron -15.

Lincoln's temperature dropped to six below, two degrees above the record low for Dec 6 set in 1950.

Retired Sternwheeler Getting Another Chance

By SAM THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Sioux City, Iowa — A retired Army Corps of Engineers sternwheeler, slightly dilapidated but still seaworthy, is being given a face-lifting here for another chance in life.

Earlier this fall the Arkansas II — veteran of nearly 25 years of patrol and snagging duty on the Mississippi — was hauled up the river and moored on a secluded bend a few miles south of here. There it underwent remodeling.

Last month, sporting a bright paint job and fancy new railings, the riverboat made its way upstream to a berth in the new Cimarron's Cimmarina Harbor. There, decked out in high style, she will eventually see permanent duty as a floating restaurant.

The exterior will be decorated in the fashion of a post-Civil War riverboat, said Allen Gray of Cimarron, Inc.

Portions of the interior will be left in their original condition; the rest will be done in elegant Victorian style. Some of the working parts, including a drive engine and a rudder, will be left in place for public viewing.

The Arkansas II, to be renamed the Missouri Queen, is driven by a 450-horsepower, fuel oil-burning, steam-condensing engine with a five-foot stroke. Her steel hull, built in Leetsdale, Pa., measures 177 feet one inch in length. She is six feet deep amidship and has a 38-foot, seven-inch beam. The superstructure was built in Memphis in 1940.

Decommissioned by the Corps in 1966, the Arkansas II was purchased at auction by New Orleans interests with the intention of converting her into a restaurant, Gray said. They were unable to find a suitable site, however, and sold her to Cimarron, which had her hauled by barge up the Missouri's twisting navigation channel last June.

Sen. Waldo Criticizes Unlimited Amendment Procedures

By United Press International

A lame-duck senator Wednesday criticized Unicameral procedures which allow bills to be completely transformed at nearly any stage in the legislative process by means of amendments. "I think that should be stopped for the good of the state," said Sen. Willard Waldo of DeWitt during a conference for state senators.

Waldo lost his seat in the Legislature through the redistricting plan adopted by the Unicameral last year.

His comments drew agreement from Sen. Richard Lewis of Holdrege.

"I've been highly critical of this, and I hope something can be done about it," he said.

The conference was sponsored jointly by the Nebraska League of Women Voters and the Legislative Council. It was designed as an orientation session for senators and speakers including members of the legislative staff. About half of the 49 lawmakers were in attendance.

The matter of bill transformation came up during a discussion on the path a bill follows in going through the Legislature when a question was asked on the amendment process.

Records show there were objections to the transformation by amendments at the time. They centered on the fact the election bill had not been subjected to a public hearing.

The bill was the creation of Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha and ultimately gained final approval. But it was vetoed by the governor and never went into effect.

Feeders Back Ag College Chancellor Proposal

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor — The Nebraska Livestock Feeders Association became the fourth agriculturally related group in Nebraska to support the concept of a separate chancellor for agriculturally related activities at the University of Nebraska.

The separate chancellor concept had previously been supported by the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation, the Farmers Union of Nebraska and the College of Agriculture Advisory Committee.

Other resolutions passed by the Livestock Feeders Association called for continued development of the NU Field Laboratory at Mead. They asked that funds obtained from the sale of research facilities near Lincoln be reinvested in developing the field lab at Mead.

The feeders group expressed strong support for a new veterinary science building at the University of Nebraska.

and called for the expansion of research activities by the veterinary science department at the university.

The association passed a series of resolutions calling for a strengthening of animal disease control laws designed to keep diseased animals from entering the state. They also supported the concept of an indemnity payment for hogs destroyed in a program to eliminate swine tuberculosis.

The feeders called for the establishment of reasonable tolerances for drug residues.

They opposed efforts to put livestock haulers under the jurisdiction of the Nebraska Railway Commission.

The feeders voted to support an increase in state aid to education provided it would guarantee a substantial reduction in property taxes.

They called for the establishment of an agricultural division within the Department of Environmental Control, staffed with agriculturally qualified personnel.

The feeders called for renewed efforts to amend the Packers and Stockyards Act to make sure farmers are paid for all livestock marketed.

The association voted to seek $2,500 from the Nebraska Livestock Foundation to fund a study of shipping fever and how to control its losses to feeders.

Newly elected officers for the organization include Woodrow Collins of Meadow Grove as president; Herb Albers Jr. of Wisner as vice president; and William Krejci of Fairmont as second vice president.

The group voted to hold its 1973 convention in Kearney Nov. 26, 27, 28.

Feeder Awards Go to Albers, Bredthauer

South Sioux City (UPI) — Mid-America Livestock Classic Awards were presented Wednesday to two leaders in Nebraska's cattle-feeding industry.

Oscar Bredthauer Sr., Grand Island, was given the cattle feeders award. He was selected by the Nebraska Livestock Breeders and Feeder Assn. for his activities in livestock promotion work.

Bredthauer is president of the National Livestock Feeders Assn.

Named as the outstanding farmer-feeder in Nebraska was Herbert J. Albers Jr., Wisner.

Albers farms 1,370 acres in Cumming County and feeds out more than 8000 head of cattle a year. He has milling facilities to manufacture feed supplements, flake corn and mix rations.

Albers has held local state and national titles in the livestock feeders associations and is active in environmental quality work.

DES Ban To Hurt Small Feeder

South Sioux City — "The small cattle feeder is going to be hurt more than the large feedlot operator by the ban on DES in livestock feeds," says Robert Swaggerty, a Fremont livestock equipment specialist.

Swaggerty made the prediction Wednesday in an address to the Nebraska Livestock Feeders Assn. convention here.

The ban on DES in feed becomes effective Jan. 1, 1973.

Swaggerty based his prediction on the lack of modern equipment to handle and treat livestock at small feedlots.

An alternative to the use of DES suggested by Swaggerty is to implant a hormone in the ear of feedlot cattle.

The technique involves placing a small pill or tablet under the skin on the hairy side of the animal's ear.

"If you are not going to do it right, don't do it at all.

Properly done, the technique can be the most profitable thing you can do in your feedlot," he said.

"Done wrong, it can create more problems than it solves," Swaggerty suggested that the key to finding a satisfactory solution to the DES ban is good equipment to handle the cattle and trained personnel to make ear implants properly.

Roads Dept., Advisory Group Seek Highway Development Action Plan

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska Department of Roads met for the first time Wednesday with the Citizens Advisory Group to formulate an Action Plan for long-range social, economic and environmental effects of state highway development.

The advisory group is part of a three-pronged approach called for by the Federal Highway Administration and its parent, the U.S. Department of Transportation.

The other two groups advising the roads department on guidelines for the Action Plan include an interdepartmental committee of the roads department and an interagency group composed of other state agencies and federal offices, such as Housing & Urban Development (HUD) and the interior department.

Nebraska is one of only three states, including Florida and Pennsylvania, which the U.S. Transportation Dept. chose to pilot Action Plans, according to Edward C. Kay, federal aid projects coordinator of the state roads department.

Kay, also state Action Plan coordinator, said Nebraska has until April 1, 1973, to come up with its plan, whereas the deadline for other states is Nov. 1, 1973. The plans from Nebraska and the other two pilot states will presumably be distributed as models to evaluate their points.

All the states' plans will be submitted to Congress for review to insure that all economic, social and environmental effects of highway projects will be considered first in how they affect the overall public.

The Citizens Advisory Group participation represents a new attitude by the highway administration, Kay said, in that ideas from the public will be considered and implemented in the Action Plan.

He said there are 18 organizations in the advisory group, and although it was not planned, the breakdown reveals six pro-highway groups, six anti-highway groups, and six in the middle.

Organizations and their spokesmen comprising the Citizens Advisory Group include the Missouri River Basin Commission, Platte River Basin Study-Nebraska, Carroll M. Hamon, Nebraska Motor Carriers Association Inc., James N. Preston, Nebraska U.S. Hwy. 81 Association, George H. Moyer, Nebraska's Scenic Hwy. No. 12 Association, Floyd Burkinshaw.

Others are the Sierra Club, Dwight Hoxie; Lincoln Chapter National Audubon Society, Walter T. Bagley; South Platte United Chambers of Commerce, Fred K. Evans; League of Nebraska Municipalities, Delmar L. Rasmussen; Better Nebraska Association, Robert B. Crosby; Citizens for Improved Planning, Douglas Gorman.

Also in the group are Zero Population Growth, Nebraska (Lincoln) Chapter, John H. McClendon; Nebraska League of Women Voters, Ms. Mary Zilly; CARE Planning Coalition, Dr. Willis Park Rokes; Nebraska Association of County Officials, Arnold Ruhnke.

Others include the Nebraska Panhandle Resources Conservation and Development Project, Dr. Vernon C. Rockey; Farm Bureau, Richard Gooding; Citizens for Environmental Improvement, Ms. Diane Beecher; and the Urban League of Nebraska, Mel Corbine.

Murder Trial Underway At Ogallala

Ogallala (UPI) — Opening arguments in the first degree murder trial of Michael Wayne Rhodes, 23, of Taylorville, Ill., were made by the prosecution and defense in Keith County District Court Wednesday.

The prosecution charged that Rhodes killed Fred Snoeijer, 22, a Dutch immigrant from Grand Rapids, Mich., on or about last May 19, with premeditated malice.

But the defense said there were five persons on the scene who could have committed the slaying and said that Stewart

Holford of Bellevue, Neb., who is charged as an accessory, actually committed the crime.

Snoeijer's body was found in a field southwest of Paxton, Neb., last May 23. He had been beaten and shot in the head.

In its opening statement, the prosecution said Rhodes were involved and that Rhodes had been under the influence of speed. The defense countered by arguing that Holford had slipped drugs into Rhodes' pop and Janey Painter of Bellevue had been injecting drugs during a trip in a pickup truck from the West Coast to Omaha. Miss Painter is also charged as an accessory.

During the trial, the prosecution said, Rhodes had the murder weapon between his legs and that he occasionally shot at cans and passing trucks before Snoeijer and a hitchhiking companion were picked up in Wyoming.

The defense said it was Holford who shot at the passing trucks and that the gun used belonged to him. Another defense contention was that Holford had fired the gun once at Miss Painter.

The murder weapon was found at the Painter home in Bellevue.

The prosecution said Rhodes took the gun with him when he went to the murder scene with the victim and another of the passengers in the pickup. The defense said it was Holford who left the pickup truck with the victim, that a scuffle ensued and three shots were fired.

Judge Hugh Stuart of North Platte said the trial probably would last two weeks.

Christmas Tree Spray Value Questionable

By United Press International

Spraying Christmas trees with chemicals designed to reduce flammability is a practice of questionable value, a University of Nebraska fire control official said Wednesday.

Joseph E. Range, extension forester, said an experiment which included the spraying of three different fire retardant solutions on pine showed the chemicals "had no significant effect on flammability of the foliage."

As a result, he said, "keeping branches fresh by having the base immersed in water is the only satisfactory method for reducing flammability."

In fact, Range said, some spray chemicals were found to have a tendency to dry the trees out and actually increase the flammability factor.

Meanwhile, State Fire Marshal Joe Plata said firm, fresh Christmas trees are the safest kind to have in the home because dry, they become highly combustible.

Plata said in order to keep the trees moist, cut off the base about two inches, place the tree in a stand containing water and then check the water level daily.

He also said the trees should be kept away from hot air ducts, radiators, TV sets, fireplaces and any other heat sources. The trees should also be taken down as soon as possible after the holidays.

Pedestrian Hit By Car Dies

Omaha — Albert Stenberg, 68, Omaha, was killed Wednesday when struck by a car as he attempted to cross a street.

Authorities said charges were pending against the driver.

MISS SUSAN ROHLFS

Of interest to both the downtown and East campuses at the University of Nebraska is the announcement made this morning by Mr. and Mrs. Merne Rohlfs of Fremont, of the engagement of their daughter, Susan Marie, to Roy Allen Rogers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Rogers of Pawnee City.

The wedding is planned for Saturday, May 26.

Miss Rohlfs is a senior at the University of Nebraska where she is majoring in interior design, and where she is a member of Alpha Lambda Delta and Phi Upsilon Omicron honoraries.

Mr. Rogers also is a senior at the University of Nebraska and is majoring in agronomy and agricultural education. He is affiliated with Ag Men, is a member of Alpha Zeta honorary, and is serving as president of Inter-Co-op Council.

Madam Chairman

MORNING

Alpha Omicron Pi Mothers' club luncheon, 11:45 o'clock, Gateway Manor, 225 No. 56th St.

AFTERNOON

Lincoln Opti-Mrs., luncheon, 12:30 o'clock, Hillcrest Country Club.

Lincoln Library Association, annual holiday tea, 3 o'clock, C. Y. Thompson Library.

EVENING

PEO, Chapter GD, Christmas dinner, 6:30 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. R. A. Stevens, 600 Hazelwood Dr.; Chapter FF, 8 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. Glen W. Witt, 1960 Prospect.

Eastborough Park Manor Southwood

suburban areas

Although the near zero temperatures and the threats of blizzards have made us hesitant to venture too far from home, we have found that our suburban residents are undaunted continuing their social activities, a few of which we will relate to you today.

For example, Saturday's sudden change in the weather did not discourage several couples from gathering at the Eastborough home of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Goetsch, who were hostess to the members of their bridge club.

Among those attending the affair were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rogge, Dr. and Mrs. Ed Kinbacher, Mr. and Mrs. Wilber Dasenbrock, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Remmers and Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Fisk.

When the couples finally took a break from their games late in the evening, they were joined by Mr. and Mrs. Homer Midtling for dessert, coffee and visiting with the other guests.

Saturday, Dec. 2, was "Daina's Day" at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest L. Meyers, whose daughter, Daina celebrated her fifth birthday.

In observance of the event, the entire family, including Daina's sister, Barbara, and her brother, Russell, enjoyed a pizza dinner at Shakey's Pizza Parlor. After a delicious pizza the family returned home for cake and ice cream.

For the past few weeks or so, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Van Deventer of Park Manor have had a whirl of activity which included entertaining guests and also playing the visitor role.

On Wednesday evening, Nov. 22, the suburban couple motored to Blair, where they spent the evening—as well as Thanksgiving Day—as the guests of Mrs. Van Deventer's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ondracek, and their daughters, Susan and Janet. Following the family dinner, the Van Deventers returned to their suburban home, in time to welcome a houseguest—Mrs. Van Deventer's sister, Mrs. Leslie Phillips of Pawnee. Mrs. Phillips plans to remain at the Van Deventer home during her husband's stay in one of the local hospitals.

However, on Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Van Deventer took to the road once again. They drove to Humboldt where they visited with Mrs. Van Deventer's mother, Mrs. Nora E. Rue, and where they remained through Sunday evening. While in Humboldt Mr. and Mrs. Van Deventer were included in plans for a family dinner, as well as an afternoon of visiting with still more relatives—including Mrs. Van Deventer's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Rue of Falls City, and that couple's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ricky Rue, also of Falls City.

Before returning to their suburban home, Mr. and Mrs. Van Deventer made another stop in Humboldt—at the home of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Blecha, and their family.

It is time for planning your holiday festivities and marking those social calendars with all of the gala events which will take form in the not too distant future.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry A. Witt of Southwood and their daughters, Lisa and Lori Nicole, already have embarked on the traditional whirlwind of December parties. For example, just last evening Mr. and Mrs. Witt attended a pre-Christmas party—but before setting out for the gala festivity, they entertained Mrs. Witt's mother, Mrs. Goldie Zajcek, at a birthday dinner.

Christmas will arrive at the Witt home just a bit early this year. On Monday evening, Dec. 18, the family will entertain some neighbors, the Jim Cunninghams, at a spaghetti supper—and then the group will exchange Christmas gifts.

Of course, the suburban residents have many other plans for later in the month—including some events which will take place at the Southwood Club House.

All pre-schoolers who reside in the Southwood area will be entertained at a Christmas party to take place at the Club House on Thursday evening, Dec. 14—and all of the residents of Southwood will participate in the traditional Christmas party scheduled for Tuesday evening, Dec. 19.

Rotary Anns Have Christmas Tea

"'Tis the season to be jolly" and no group in Lincoln is more aware of that fact than the Rotary Anns.

The holiday season, as far as the Rotary Anns are concerned began on Tuesday, Dec. 5, when the Downtown Rotary Anns, more formally known as the Anns of Rotary Club 14, entertained their counterparts from the Northeast—the Northeast Rotary Anns, at a Christmas tea.

The party—and gift exchange—was held at the home of Mrs. Walton Ferris and the distaff side of both Rotary Clubs were on hand for a festive afternoon.

The Christmas tea is something of a tradition with both organizations. When the idea blossomed five years ago the Northeasterners and the Downtowners joined forces for the pre-holiday festivities. Last year, however, the Northeast Rotary Anns decided to entertain the downtown group, and this year the Anns of Rotary Club 14, returned the courtesy.

The state convention of the Nebraska Veterinarian Medical Association Auxiliary will close its three-day sessions today. There have been interesting speakers and equally interesting programs during the convention, but one of the important events took place at a brunch held in the Lancaster Room of the Radisson Cornhusker Hotel, on Wednesday morning—the naming of new officers for the coming year.

The new NVMA Auxiliary president is Mrs. D. J. Rezac of Ogallala, and the newly named president-elect is Mrs. William H. Whitenack of Grand Island. Mrs. C. M. Wempe of York was elected secretary-treasurer.

Attendants, Parties

This morning, Miss Marilyn Wiest, who will become the bride of Mitchell Lowe on Saturday evening, Dec. 30, is making announcement of the members of her bridal party.

For the 7 o'clock ceremony, which will be solemnized at the Fourth Presbyterian Church, Miss Wiest has chosen her sister, Mrs. Michael Wylie to be her matron of honor, and Miss Cheryl Richardson will be the maid of honor. Mrs. Derald Murrell will serve as bridesmatron.

Martin Lowe will attend his brother as best man, and the groomsmen and ushers will be David Wiest and Derald Murrell.

Miss Michelle Wylie and Jon Wiest will serve as flower girl and ring bearer, respectively; and Miss Peggy Lowe and Miss Chris Lowe, sister of the prospective bridegroom, will light the chancel candles.

On Sunday, Dec. 10, Miss Wiest will be the guest of honor at a prenuptial courtesy to be held at the home of Miss Cheryl Richardson. During the afternoon, friends of the bride-elect will present her with a miscellaneous shower.

Mrs. Clair Shuman was hostess at her home on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 26, for a miscellaneous shower honoring Miss Wiest. Serving as assistant hostesses were Miss Blanche Bickel and Mrs. Carl Fox.

Miss Wiest and Mr. Lowe shared honors at a shower which took place on Saturday evening, Dec. 2, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Eisel. Mr. and Mrs. Derald Murrell served as assistant host and hostess for the miscellaneous shower.

Miss Wiest attended the University of Nebraska and she currently is a student at Lincoln General School of Nursing. She is the daughter of Mrs. Katherine Wiest. Mr. Lowe, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lowe, is a student at the university.

MISS TERESA RHOADES

This morning Mr. and Mrs. Lester O. Rhoades of Big Springs make announcement of the engagement of their daughter, Teresa Marie, to Richard J. Lutz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lutz of Ashland.

Saturday, May 26, has been chosen as the wedding date.

Miss Rhoades is a graduate of Ben Your Hairdresser School of Beauty and now is careering at Richman Gorman in Lincoln.

Mr. Lutz has completed two years of duty with the United States Army and now also is associated with Richman Gorman.

Silver Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn McAdams celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary on Sunday, Dec. 3, at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Barnes.

Mrs. McAdams, the former Miss Elva Ross of Fairbury, was married to Mr. McAdams on Dec. 2, 1947, at Wilber.

Assisting with arrangements for the event were the couple's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Barber of Fairbury.

Guests included Russell McAdams, Douglas McAdams, Marion Barnes, Jerry Barnes, Mrs. Bernice Spier and daughters, Mrs. Harry Powell, Mrs. Joseph Pirrone, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Gross, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Powell and Mr. and Mrs. John Roux.

Those attending from out-of-town included Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Sommerville of Alexandria; Mr. and Mrs. Don Clow and daughters of Roca; and Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Dayhoff and their daughter, Amy, Cleve Adams, Miss Donna Adams and Edwin Jones, all of Fairbury.

A son, Dale McAdams of Madrid, Spain, was unable to attend the event.

Books—For Lucky Children

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON

Lucky is the child who finds a book waiting for him or her under the tree early on Christmas morning. Not only do books offer countless hours of entertainment for youngsters; they also introduce them to a pastime which will prove invaluable in later years—reading.

This holiday season, there are many recently-published volumes for all ages from which to choose—many of which are by children's authors who have already established reputations for producing quality reading material. And, of course, there are many classics—such as Mine's beloved "Winnie-The-Pooh" collection, and Laura Ingalls Wilder's "Little House" series—that are still readily available (most of them in paperback as well as cloth-bound) and always popular.

Books for the very young reader (ages 4 to 8) often have an educational purpose, and included among this type of reading matter are two books published by American Heritage Press. "I Spy" and "I Hear" are picture books which deal with, in the first case, objects in a child's home environment; and, in the second, sounds in a child's world. Instructions for use by parents accompany both books which help the child learn to identify the things he or she encounters.

Hallmark also publishes a series of books designed to interest youngsters in this age group. "The Wiggle 'N Gobble Book" (Starring: Your Own Funny Fingers) and "The If I Were Book," both involve the child physically as well as mentally; and "ABC" is a traditional alphabet book with a modern flair.

"Play On Words" (Random House) by A. & M. Provenson is designed to teach the child about language. As is the case with the previously-mentioned books, this one employs graphic illustrations as well as a minimum of words to instruct the reader about such things as 'homonyms,' 'noisy words' and 'words in a word.'

And for Richard Scarry fans, his most recent book, the "Funniest Storybook Ever" (Random House), continues the tradition of educational entertainment.

Three books in the "An I Can Read" series published by Harper & Row, will also make excellent gifts for children in the 4 to 8 age group: "Frog and Toad Are Friends," and "Frog and Toad Together," a collection of humorous adventure stories involving two comrades, both written by Arnold Lobel; and "Billy Goat and His Well-Fed Friends" by Nonny Hogrogian, which concerns a billy-goat who runs away from home.

Teaching children to count is the objective of one of the most recent Golden Books—"From One to Ten and Back Again" by Ken Wagner. In the book, the author presents each number as a word and a numeral; and with the help of illustrations, each number is also experienced in several humorous situations. Another Golden Press book, "Max the Nosey Bear" by Katherine Howard, utilizes the child's sense of smell to add interest to the story. Through the use of "microfragrance strips"—which, when scratched with a fingernail, emit a characteristic smell—the book allows the child to follow Max through a busy day filled with scents of toothpaste, soap, peanut butter, a carnation and so on.

Slightly older readers will undoubtedly be thrilled to receive a copy of Ronald Dahl's recently-released book, "Charlie and The Great Glass Elevator" (Knopf). Most youngsters probably are familiar with "Charlie and The Chocolate Factory" which is the precursor to this particular book. It picks up where "Charlie and The Chocolate Factory" left off—in the Great Glass Elevator. It seems that, somehow, the wrong button is pushed, and the elevator in which Charlie, Willy Wonka and Charlie's family are riding, is inadvertently launched into outer space. The adventures that ensue are certain to delight any youngster.

Animal stories are favorites of children who are of late grade school and junior high age. "Sounder" (Harper & Row), written by William H. Armstrong, is a touching story about a coon dog whose master is a poor Black sharecropper. Published several years ago, "Sounder" was awarded the Newberry Medal, and it is about to be made into a movie.

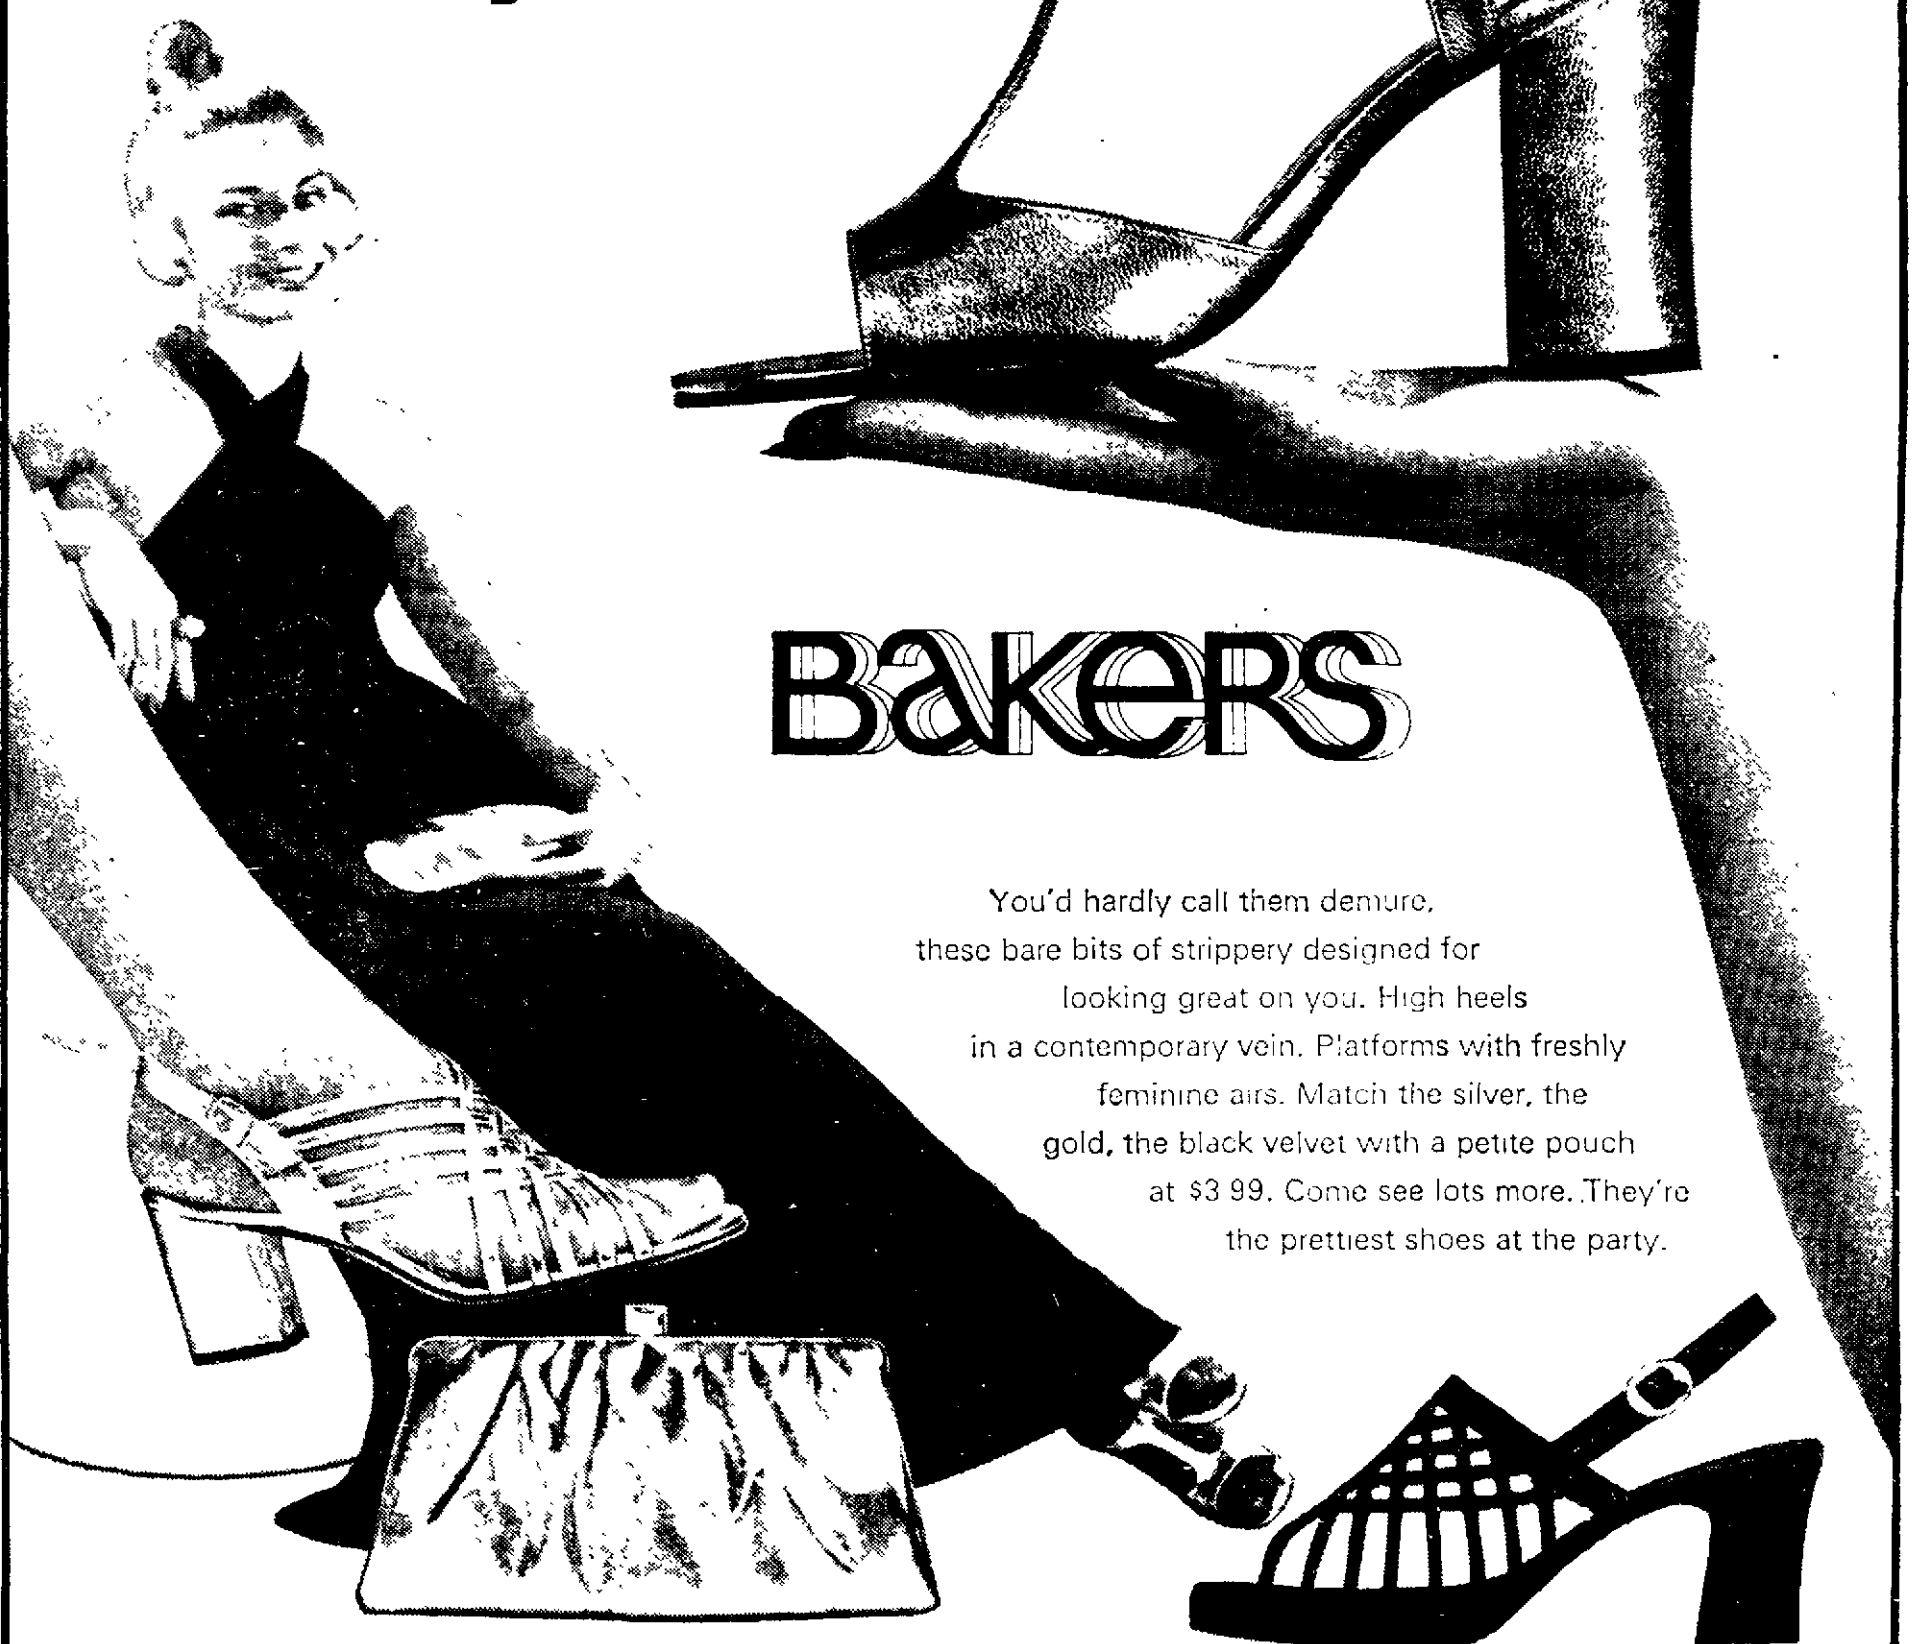

Young horse lovers will be interested in two newly-released books: "Nez Perce Buffalo Horse" (Caxton) and "San Domingo: The Medicine Hat Stallion" (Rand-McNally). "Nez Perce Buffalo Horse," written by William E. Sanderson, is an adventure story which deals with the great changes that the coming of the horse made in the life of the Indian.

Marguerite Henry, the popular author whose books "Misty of Chincoteague," "Brightly of the Grand Canyon" and "King of the Wind" have captured the imaginations of young readers for many years, has recently written another story entitled "San Domingo: The Medicine Hat Stallion." The tale, which is set in the Nebraska Territory in the 1850's, concerns one young Peter Lundy, a frontier boy who is given a colt with a head-marking in the shape of a medicine hat—an attribute which renders him sacred in the eyes of the plains Indians. Young Peter is heartbroken when his father trades his colt for a racehorse, and their subsequent adventures and reunion make for an extremely interesting story.

A former Lincoln resident who received her B.A. degree from the University of Nebraska, Marjorie Filley Stover, also has written a new book which takes place on the frontier during the mid-19th century. "Trail Boss In Pigtails" (Atheneum) is a fictional account of an actual event involving a young girl who became a trail boss for 82 head of cattle on the way from Texas to Chicago.

Readers of all ages (adults included) will be delighted with the reissue of the original versions of several classic fairy tales illustrated by Arthur Rackham. "The Sleeping Beauty," "Cinderella" and "Once Upon A Time" (which includes such favorites as "Rip Van Winkle," "A Christmas Carol," and "Alice's Adventures In Wonderland"), all published by Viking, are included in this group. Mr. Rackham was a popular English illustrator whose well-known sketches decorated the original editions published during the early years of the 20th century. The charming drawings and the accompanying texts will be enjoyed by young readers, and will provide a nostalgic look at the past for many adults whose childhood reading included many stories illustrated by Mr. Rackham.

Opening lead—jack of spades.

Once upon a time, in the early days of contract bridge, there lived a man by the name of Samson Shmearecase. He was regarded by some (particularly by himself) as the greatest bridge player who ever lived.

His exploits at the card table were simply phenomenal. Smother plays, double squeezes and triple grand coups were all child's play to him. As declarer, no hand that could be made ever got by him; as defender, no hand that could be defeated was ever made.

The only trouble was that all these triumphs occurred only while Samson was asleep—dreaming. In real life he could not count to 13, he revoked as often as he followed suit, in fact he once went down 4,600 points at three notrump redoubled when he could have made the contract with three overtricks.

But once Samson entered the Land of Nod there was a complete and startling change of personality. He became a giant-killer, the sluggish mundavanished, and his thinking suddenly became clear and precise. His results were stupendous.

Here is a simple example of Samson's prowess. He held the East hand. Declarer won the spade lead with the ace, drew two rounds of trumps, then led the queen of diamonds and finessed.

Our hero took the king and calmly played the only card in his hand that could beat the contract. He led the jack of clubs!

Declarer was now a deceased duck. Whether he covered or not, the defenders were bound to score three club tricks to put him down one.

But note that if Samson had made the more normal return of the three instead of the jack, South would have followed low and thus lost only two club tricks. Or had Samson first led the ace, declarer would also have lost only two club tricks and made the contract.

Samson had triumphed again!

NU Receives National Grant For Willa Cather Seminar

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln has been awarded a grant of $14,125 by the National Endowment for the Humanities to support an international seminar on "The Art of Willa Cather," to be held at the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education, Oct. 25-28, 1973, as part of a year-long series of events known collectively as the Willa Cather Centennial Festival.

The purpose of the seminar, which will be attended by 35 distinguished scholars from the United States, Canada, England, France, Italy, and Japan, is to re-examine and re-define Willa Cather's fictional techniques, themes, and goals in the light of new bibliographical, biographical, and critical discoveries.

Miss Cather, who was born in Back Creek Valley, Va., on Dec. 7, 1873, came with her family to Webster County, Neb., in 1883, and began her professional career in Lincoln writing for the "Nebraska State Journal" while she was still a student at the University of Nebraska, from which she graduated in 1895. Although she lived mostly in the East after 1896, she returned frequently for long visits to Nebraska and it is the setting of half of her 12 novels and a third of her short stories.

Before Miss Cather's death in New York City on April 24, 1947, her work had won her a world-wide audience and a host of honors, among them the Pulitzer Prize, the Prix Femina American, the Gold Medal of the American Academy of Arts and Letters, and a dozen honorary degrees.

The Willa Cather Centennial Festival is sponsored by NU's College of Arts and Sciences, Melvin D. George, dean, with the support of Chancellor James H. Zumberge and President D. B. Varner.

The project is being planned and implemented by a committee chaired by Professor Robert E. Knoll of the Department of English. Committee members from NU are Professors John W. Robinson, chairman of the Department of English, John Moran, acting director of the School of Music, Bernice Slose of the Department of English and editor of "Prairie Schooner", Virginia Faulkner, editor of the University of Nebraska Press, Ron Hull, assistant general manager for programming, University Television, and Norman Geske, director of University Art Galleries.

Other members are Mrs. Mildred R. Bennett, president of the Willa Cather Pioneer Memorial and Educational Foundation, Mrs. Maurice Gilmore, president of the Nebraska Arts Council, and Professor Bruce Baker, chairman of the Department of English at UNO.

The Centennial Festival will open on April 28, 1973, with the annual spring conference of the Willa Cather Pioneer Memorial and Educational Foundation in Red Cloud. Early in May Miss Cather will be honored by a commemorative postage stamp in the American Arts series, with first-day covers to be issued at Red Cloud.

Another spring event will be the publication by the University of Nebraska Press of a new volume of Willa Cather's uncollected short fiction, "Uncle Valentine and Other Stories", edited with an introduction by Bernice Slose.

In addition to the international seminar, to her events of the centennial festival, which will extend through the spring of 1974, include concerts, an exhibition of photographs, an evening of readings, a television special, and book and periodical publications. Present plans call for a dozen cities and towns throughout the state, as well as Lincoln and Red Cloud, to participate in features of the celebration.

Churches Set Up A New Organization

Dallas, Tex. (AP) — Representatives of most of the nation's major Protestant and Orthodox churches Wednesday set up a new cooperative organization, more broadly representative and with greater stress on basic beliefs. At the same time, they reinforced their role for speaking out on public questions with oral implications.

The drastic overhauling of the country's biggest ecumenical enterprise was approved at the ninth — and last — triennial assembly of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A., the body being revised. The National Council's name was retained, but the plan abolishes the large, once-in-three-years assembly of 800 voting delegates, vesting its top decision-making authority in a 350-member governing board meeting twice annually.

This means more clear-cut centralized authority but is intended to put it on a more consistently representative basis.

"It is not centralization in a small elitist group," said the Rev. Thomas J. Liggett, a Christian Church (Disciples) official of Indianapolis, who headed a commission that drew up the plan.

"It is giving power to a board that is more representative than we've ever had in the past, with 50% of it laity."

New provisions also require that denominational size, in that denominational representatives, their numbers varying according to denominational size, include one-fourth women, one-eighth persons under 28, as well as denominational executives with power to implement decisions.

Such direct power lines through the denominations have been generally lacking in the old setup, sometimes resulting in adopted policies or programs that never got financed or carried out.

Governing representation also was widened to include local and regional groups.

Involved in the reorganized venture are 33 denominations with about 43 million members. A welcoming door also was opened to other denominations, including the Roman Catholic Church.

The remodeling means a "new style, a new direction, a broadened, deepened, more flexible and stronger council," said Dr. Edwin Espy, a Baptist and the council's general secretary.

Interior Dept. Is Given Housecleaning

The New York Times
Washington — A housecleaning of top echelon officials of the Interior Department was under way Tuesday, with three assistant secretaries, the two top officials of the Bureau of Indian Affairs, the director of the National Park Service, the commissioner of reclamation and the departmental solicitor reported to have been dismissed in the shakeup.

President Nixon and the secretary of the interior, Rogers C. B. Morton, were expected to announce the dismissals soon, along with widespread changes in lower-level posts, according to informed sources.
The personnel actions followed Nixon's decision to retain Morton as secretary of the department during his second term. Only Tuesday, Morton said that he would be making changes not only in personnel but in the department's programs.

The shakeup, which was regarded by observers as one of the most sweeping in any cabinet department in years, came as Nixon was reported to be prepared to push in Congress his reorganization plan that would include a department of natural resources.
The proposed new department would absorb the Interior Department and would bring together natural resources functions now apportioned among a dozen or more agencies.

Nutrition Programs For Elderly Discussed At Two-Day Seminar

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

About 25 representatives from communities across the state who wish to set up nutrition programs for the elderly met in Lincoln to discuss use of administrative levers to increase and fund comprehensive programs for the aging.

The two-day seminar followed a preliminary meeting in August and the participants, who represent city groups and community action programs, for example, are now "in the stage of assessing community needs and developing fund requests," said Roger F. Cole.

Cole, who led the seminar, is federal projects director for the Nebraska Commission on Aging.

Main objective of the seminar, Cole reported, was to evaluate how proposals for community programs could qualify for federal funds under Titles 3 and 7 of the Older Americans Act, which provide nutrition for the elderly.

The state aging commission has funded some 35 grants in the past ranging from senior centers to home health agencies by hospitals, but Cole said no nutrition programs have been established previously using the federal money available.

Once the communities or groups complete their proposals and submit them to the Nebraska Commission on Aging, that agency evaluates "their merits and—if approved—allocates cash grants," Cole said.

Approval rests with the state agency, which operates the grant program, and the state provides some matching funds, Cole said. Overall purpose of

25 UP Freight Cars Derailed

Hershey (UPI) — Twenty-five cars of a 142-car Union Pacific freight train derailed early Wednesday near here, blocking both the eastbound and westbound lines for about five hours.

A railroad spokesman said service was restored through use of a siding near the derailment site.

A derrick and other heavy equipment from the North Platte yards is at the scene to clean up the damaged cars and merchandise. Six of the 25 derailed cars were loaded, the spokesman said.

The 25th through 49th cars on the train left the tracks. No cause for the derailment has been determined, the spokesman said.

There were no injuries. Keep up with real depth reporting on government, state and community affairs in the Capital Section of the "Sunday Journal and Star."

the grants is "to provide services for those aged) faced with institutionalization" where the services will prevent that, he said.

In fiscal year 1973, which ends June 30, 1974, the Health Education and Welfare (HEW) Department allowed the state $828,000 (out of $100 million nationally) for nutrition programs in Nebraska, Cole said.

The agency anticipates $1.2 million for the program in fiscal 1974, he said, pending approval of HEW funds which are held up administratively in Washington.

He said all but three or four of the 35 past programs for the elderly in Nebraska continued to operate when federal grants ran out, but the trend now leans toward total funding for continuous operation.

Also attending the seminar to answer questions were representatives from the federal regional office of the Administration on Aging in Kansas City, and from a management consultant firm in St. Louis.

Ken Swyers of the consultant firm discussed a manpower analysis and explained to the group the planning processes for staff considerations in their programs. His firm, he said, serves the state agency for three-month periods to render technical assistance on food service.

Winter's Also For Skiing

What can you do in winter besides hunting and ice fishing? Try skiing.

That's what approximately 180 Lincolinites involved in the Cornhusker Ski Club do, but not entirely in the Cornhusker state.

"We take four trips a year to Colorado," Jack Hyland, a spokesman for the club says. "And, in addition, there is also a trip to Italy at very reasonable rates if you want to go."

The Cornhusker Ski Club, first organized in 1969, is an affiliate of the Flatlander Ski Association which in turn is part of the Rocky Mountain Ski Association under the auspices of the U.S. Ski Association.

"We started the club (with 50 members) to further interest in skiing," Hyland explains. "And our organization has really grown with active participants who really want to ski."

"Our first trip this year will be this weekend to Arapahoe, then on Jan. 17, we will go to Vail for four days for the Flatlander Ski Race."

"We're not all that good, but we race and the race is sponsored by the Budweiser people so it's just that much more fun," he jokes. "Then after that, we'll be at Steamboat Springs in February and Aspen in March for another four days."

Expensive. Not really, according to Hyland. The trip to Arapahoe will cost $37 with the members of the club leaving Thursday on a 32 passenger sleeper bus with double berths and spending Friday, Saturday and Sunday skiing before coming home. The $37 also includes lift fees and two evening meals and breakfasts along with lodging.

"The cost of the trip to Italy is really amazing," Hyland says. "We get a round trip ticket, two meals a day and lodging and lift fees for $333."

"That trip (to Cervinia) next to the Matterhorn, incidentally, is sold out. Six of us, including myself, are taking it from here."

Dues Aid Olympics

"Part of our dues go to the U.S. Ski Association to help pay expenses for the Olympic skiers," Hyland says. "But the association isn't mainly for Olympic and competitive skiers."

I'm grabbing at the real statistics now, but only about 20 per cent of the organization deals with competitive skiing. The other 80 per cent is recreational," he says. "But we do help the Olympics with our dues."

Membership in the club is restricted to skiers over 18 "unless they're a member of one of the families in the club." Other than that, both families and single people are welcome.

"We meet once a month at various locations," Hyland says. "And we show movies on different aspects of skiing and have a couple of lectures on conditioning (from orthopedic surgeons) and other things."

"As far as equipment goes, we're all pretty well equipped ourselves, but you can rent equipment here in town at pretty reasonable rates . . . which I would advise people doing to make sure they like skiing before spending a lot of money on their own equipment," he emphasizes.

"We're always looking for new members. We'd like to win that cup in the Flatlanders race at Vail. Usually, Omaha (which has about 11,000 members) or Kansas City (around 2,200) takes it. We'd like to win it sometime," he says.

"Anyone who wants more information on it can call myself or Dick Kincaid (the president) and we'll help all we can."

Rodgers, Glover, Pruitt Not On Oilers Draft List

Houston (UPI) — The Houston Oilers will not draft any of the top three players in the Heisman Trophy voting if they get the No. 1 pick in this year's draft, coach Bill Peterson said Wednesday.

Johnny Rodgers of Nebraska, the Heisman winner, and Greg Pruitt of Oklahoma, the runner-up, are too small to be a No. 1 choice, Peterson said when added that middle guard Rich Glover of Nebraska, who finished third in the voting, also is too small at 6-1, 234 pounds to play a defensive tackle in pro ball.

"I think Rodgers is a great athlete," Peterson explained. "I talked to Vince Gibson of Kansas State and he said he's the best he's ever seen. Vince was on my staff five years and I value his opinion."

"But in a building process like we're in, the little guys often have short pro careers," Peterson said. "We need to go for somebody that would last longer."

"You don't go on reputation," he said. "You go on what you need. We need a bigger back to go along with what we have. Sometimes you have to pass up great football players to get what you need and since there isn't a great back who also is big this year, we'll probably go to another position."

Peterson said he is looking for a good defensive tackle or end, but not Glover, who won the Outland Trophy as the best collegiate lineman this year.

"Glover couldn't play a down line position in pro ball," Peterson said. "He's too small. He would probably play middle linebacker and it would take him a year to adjust to this position. We need someone to come in here and play next year."

Peterson Rites Slated Thursday

Omaha (AP) — Services for Bernie Peterson, 52, former State Boxing Commission deputy, will be held here Thursday.

Peterson died Tuesday of an apparent heart attack. Peterson was a former Golden Gloves fighter and an ardent booster of University of Nebraska football.

GLOVER TOPS UPI VOTING

. . . Joined By Rodgers, Harper As All-Americans

New York (UPI) — Rich Glover of Nebraska, winner of the Outland Trophy as the outstanding lineman in the nation, was the top vote-getter on the 1972 United Press International all-America college football team released Wednesday.

Glover, a 6-foot-1, 234-pound middle guard from Jersey City, N.J., received 216 of a possible 230 votes from the sports writers and sportscasters across the nation and was one of three Nebraska players named to the All-America squad.

The other Cornhuskers selected were wide receiver Johnny Rodgers, the Heisman Trophy winner, and defensive end Willie Harper. It marks the second year in a row that Rodgers and Harper have been selected to the all-American team.

Rodgers' selection was unique in that the 5-foot-9, 173-pound senior received enough votes at both wide receiver and running back to have made the squad at either position. Since he got more votes for wide receiver he was named to that position.

Oklahoma, Southern California, Purdue

and Tennessee each placed two players on the all-America squad while Alabama, Texas, Notre Dame, Ohio State, Penn State, Colorado, Michigan State, Michigan, North Carolina, Louisiana State and Arizona State each placed one.

Oklahoma, which nosed out Nebraska for the Big Eight title and was ranked No. 2 in the final UPI ratings, named running back Greg Pruitt and center Tom Braham to the offensive team and Southern Cal, the nation's top-ranked team, placed tight end Charles Young and tackle Pete Adams on the offensive squad.

Purdue was represented by running back Otis Armstrong and 6-foot-7, 279-pound defensive tackle Dave Butz while Tennessee had linebacker Jamie Rotella and defensive back Conrad Graham named to the team.

Oklahoma dominated the second team with four selections. The Sooners placed tight end Al Chandler, offensive guard Ken Jones, middle guard Lucious Selmon and defensive tackle Derland Moore on the second team.

Rebounding Concerns Cipriano

. . . LACK OF SIZE HURTING HUSKER CAGERS

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Rebounding — with a capital R — is causing Nebraska basketball coach Joe Cipriano the most concern as the Huskers prepare for this weekend's Mountaineer Classic.

The Huskers, with Brendy Lee and Don Jackson each having 12 rebounds after two games, have been out-rebounded 78-58 after a 64-46 victory over North Texas State and a 65-59 loss at Wyoming.

"We didn't do a bad job of rebounding, but they (Wyoming) got four baskets right after missed free throws,"

Cipriano said Wednesday at a press briefing. "Another reason they shot so well is that they got six second shots that went right into the basket."

"We've been hurt by the rebounding in several crucial situations," he said. "We've been working on tipping in shots the last few days in practice. We ought to be at least tipping the basketball even if we can't get our hands on it."

Height has been and probably will be a deficit this season with Nebraska. Lee at 6-8 and Jackson at 6-6 are the two tallest Huskers which will put NU at a disadvantage with most opponents.

Another problem has been the inability of the NU guards to swarm after rebounds which bounce out in the free throw area, Cipriano said.

"But defensively, this team is showing more aggressiveness and fundamentally is better than any club we've had (in nine previous seasons) here," he said.

He also credited the Huskers with displaying poise and determination when they trailed by 13 points in the second half at Laramie last Friday night. NU rallied and chopped the margin to three points with under two minutes left before the Cowboys pulled away to the final six-point verdict.

Although Cipriano is not planning on altering his lineup for the California encounter Friday night at Morgantown, W. Va., he said he was considering giving his reserves as much if not more playing time than his regulars.

"We're going to keep things (the starting lineup) the same, but the sixth, seventh and eighth players are going to see a lot of action," he noted.

The big surprise thus far has been the scoring proficiency of freshman Jerry Fort, who is tied with Lee, a junior from Brush, Colo., with an 11.5 point-per-game output.

As a team, NU is shooting at a respectable 43.3 per cent clip while the two foes have hit on 44 per cent.

Overall, Cipriano has been pleased with his young team, but he indicated that the Golden Bears will provide a solid test.

"Maybe our defense will make a difference," he said. "But I know we've got to do a better job rebounding than what we've shown."

—NWU ENTERS WITH 3-0 RECORD— NIAC Pre-Season Tourney Termed 'Wide-Open' Affair

By STEVE GILLISPIE
Star Sports Writer

Blair — Once again the Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference's pre-season basketball tournament is predicted to be a wide-open affair.

The three-day tournament gets underway here Thursday at Borup Coliseum. In the three previous tournaments the top-seeded team has failed to emerge as the winner.

"Any one of the teams in the tournament is capable of winning the title," Dana coach Jerry Rainforth said.

"Which ever team is able to put together three good games should have the best chance of winning the tournament, but then again a team might be able to have an 'off' night and still be in contention," he continued.

"This is the reason we have the tournament, to determine which team plays the best on the court during these three particular days."

The six NIAC schools will be joined by two guest teams, Bellevue and John F. Kennedy Colleges, to fill out the tournament slate.

Nebraska Wesleyan (3-0) and Bellevue (0-2) open the tourney at 3:30 p.m., Doane (0-2) and JFK (3-3) meet at 5:15.

Hastings (3-1) and Midland (2-0) at 7 and Concordia (1-2) and Dana (0-1) at 8:45 in first-round action.

The Plainsmen have the best record of the tournament teams and are off to their best start in nine years.

NWU has three returning starters and was picked by some NIAC coaches to win the conference this season. The one big gap coach Dr. Irv Peterson had is apparently filled.

Dick French, who made over 50 per cent of his shots and averaged scoring in double figures last year, bypassed his senior season in favor of attending medical school.

His apparent heir is 6-2 Lincoln East sophomore Steve Joekel, who is averaging 15.3 points a game.

When 6-2 Panama junior Dean DeBoer recovers from a leg injury, he is expected to push Joekel for a starting berth.

The Plainsmen's foe, the Bruins, are young and under a new coach, Jerry Mosser.

Doane lost four starters from an 18-9 team that won the regular season NIAC title. However, the lone returning starter, Mike Rehn and his teammates appear capable of winning.

And the fact coach Bob Erickson has produced winning teams the last eight years and is the school's winningest cage coach, is in the Tigers' favor.

Bob Cerv has taken over the coaching duties for JFK and the team has shown improvement over last year in the first six games.

Although Hastings lost five starters, coach Dr. Lynn Farrell has four transfers and brought up some excellent players in getting the team off to a good start.

Coach My Draemel has two top veterans in Vern Banks and Kermit Sweeney for Midland and the Warriors figure to improve greatly on last year's 5-17 record.

Concordia has two lettermen and two transfers trying to take the place of four graduated lettermen for coach Bob Baden.

Rainforth originally had five returning starters, but lost two unexpectedly. One is now in law school and another failed to return to classes this fall.

But, Dana is still considered a strong team and anticipates improving on last year's 8-18 record.

Later, though, he was picked up on suspicion of possessing marijuana. No evidence was discovered. Last spring he drew more publicity when he ran a stop sign while driving with a suspended license.

The people at the University of Nebraska who claim to know Johnny Rodgers tell me he's a good person and all that trouble is behind him, but it all came up again lately when some moralists argued the 5-foot-9, 173 pound Omaha-bred triple threat runner did not exactly exemplify all the Heisman Trophy symbolizes.

"For awhile it seemed like I wouldn't get anything," said Johnny Rodgers Tuesday after they got in touch with him by phone at Rich Glover's house in Jersey City and he came over to receive his award.

"I wasn't sure whether I was gonna play anymore," he went on.

Somebody asked him why?

"Different things, different troubles," he said.

"Like what?"

"Like what?" Rodgers repeated, who goes about the same size as Dallas' Bobby Hayes. "Well everybody knows what it's no secret. I'm glad people thought enough to vote

East Set To Defend City Wrestling Title

NORTHEAST MAY PROVIDE MAJOR CHALLENGE FOR SPARTANS

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Writer

Lincoln prep wrestling teams may have to struggle for statewide recognition this winter. Lincoln East, considered the best in the Capital City, opened its season with a fourth place finish behind Grand Island, Kearney and Hastings in the Kearney Invitational Wrestling Tournament last weekend.

The Spartans, defending city, Trans-Nebraska and district champions and 1972 state runner-up, were well off the pace at Kearney—55 behind Grand Island, 37 behind Kearney and 11 behind Hastings.

Two of those schools, Grand Island and Hastings, thus may be the class of the usually Lincoln-dominated Trans-Nebraska wrestling race.

East coach Jim Holechek, however, figures his young, inexperienced team will get better and more competitive as the season progresses.

"We only have four lettermen back," he notes, "but we should have no really weak weights. Our strength is in the upper weights with Rick Carr, Doug O'Mara and Jim Breeden."

"Our schedule is tougher than in the past," adds Holechek, a Kearney State College graduate in his fourth year at East. "It will be a test to duplicate last year's undefeated dual season (8-0). We will be using a number of underclassmen throughout the lineup, but all of these young men are sound wrestlers."

Carr, at 167 pounds, and Breeden, at 185, won titles at Kearney. Both were two-way starters on East's co-championship football team.

O'Mara, a senior letterman, finished second behind Beatrice heavyweight John Pluckett at Kearney.

Other Spartan lettermen are seniors Craig Johnson (132) and Tom Moore (112-119) and junior Chuck Stevenson (119). Moore and O'Mara were both third in the Trans-Nebraska last season. O'Mara also won his district, finished fourth at state and fourth in the National AAU Jr. Olympics freestyle.

Northeast is expected to be East's chief city challenger. Coach John McIntyre's Rockets are seeking improvement of third place finishes in both the Trans-Nebraska and district and an 11th place state showing.

Northeast's strength among eight returning lettermen is concentrated in the lower weights with Dan Longoria (98-105), Jerry Wilcox (119), Chuck Waldron (145) and Bob Hamel (55).

Hamel made an early bid to establish himself among the state's elite. He won the 155-pound class and was named Class A's outstanding wrestler in last weekend's rugged Omaha North Invitational.

Last season, Hamel was Trans-Nebraska Conference champion, but missed district competition because of sickness. Longoria was a Trans-Nebraska runner-up and Wilcox and Waldron were third place league finishers last winter.

McIntyre, in his ninth year at Northeast, hopes four other lettermen help the Rockets better last season's 5-3-1 dual record. They include junior Richard Montgomery (112), senior Dave King (126), senior Monte Draper (132) and senior Dave West (187), Northeast's excellent football center.

Although Lincoln High is considered lacking in team strength, coach Mel Simpson's squad appears to have three of the city's top wrestlers in Al Lyons (155), Trini Ortiz (132) and Bruce Simpson (138).

Lyons and Ortiz finished second and fourth, respectively, at district last season. Jerry Peterson, a 105-pound junior letterman, also was a fourth place district finisher.

Other Link lettermen returning include Steve Maas (112), junior Dennis Parker (119), senior Jon Weddle (185) and junior Jerry Szalawiga (145).

"Our season can't be much worse than it has been the last two years (1-9 in duals last season)," says Simpson, "but if we do much better it is going to have to be done by underclassmen supporting a few experienced seniors."

Southeast returns the most lettermen (10) in the city, but coach Gail Baum's Knights finished only sixth at district and last in the Trans-Nebraska in 1972.

Two Knights, 132-pounder Tom Jensen and 167-pounder Bill Jensen, reached the semifinals at the Omaha North Invitational. Dirk Allgood, a 145-pound senior, hopes to regain his sophomore achievements. He was sidelined by injuries last season.

As a soph, Allgood won the Trans-Nebraska, was third at district and made the Journal and Star all-city wrestling team. The Knights hope to challenge for city laurels with the additional help of letterman Steve Kettelhut, Don Weber and Cliff Davis.

Kettelhut, a senior 155-pounder, was an all-city selection and third place district finisher at 145 last year. Weber, one of a pair of two-year lettermen, was second in the Trans-Nebraska at 155 last season. Davis, a senior heavyweight, was fourth in the Trans-Nebraska.

"This year's group gained a lot of experience last year and could be a good team if everyone has learned by past mistakes and is ready to work hard and progress," says Baum, a Nebraska graduate in his eighth year at Southeast.

Other Knight lettermen include Steve Donley (105), Dennis Lovelady (126), Bob Scheve (132) and Dave Marri (138).

Intra-City Tilts Highlight Weekend

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Writer

A pair of intra-city contests Southeast vs Northeast Thursday night and Lincoln High vs East Friday night — highlight this weekend's prep basketball activity in Lincoln.

But both games will be forced to share the spotlight with a pair of interesting

Saturday night matchups — East's hosting Metro power Omaha Central and Pius X's entertaining Fairbury.

Pius X, like East, faces a double-barrel weekend assignment, traveling to Crete Friday night before returning to the Capital City against Bob Siegel & Co.

"I believe both Crete and Fairbury are among the top five Class B teams in the state," says Pius X coach Don Kelley. "But we believe we're capable of beating both teams with the right kind of breaks."

The Thunderbolts will face Siegel's shooting talents for the fourth time in his varsity career, having beaten Fairbury two years ago when the Jellies finished state champions.

"We've always felt we've done a respectable job on Siegel by holding him in the vicinity of 20 to 25 points," says Kelley. "He's never been an individual killer against us with one of those 35-point jobs. I just hope it doesn't happen this year."

Cincinnati (AP) — As she watched her son slam the most dramatic home run of his baseball career during this fall's National League playoffs, Mrs. Katie Bench thought of the spot she knew had been found on his lung.

"To me," she said Wednesday as her son, Johnny Bench, prepared for possible major surgery to investigate the spot, "that home run was the highlight of everything."

The home run she noted gave the Reds a 2-2 tie with the Pittsburgh Pirates in the bottom of the ninth inning in the fifth and final NL playoff game, a struggle the Reds won 3-2.

Doctors had discovered weeks before in routine X-rays given the Reds that Bench had the spot-in medical terminology — a lesion. But Bench continued to play News of the medical problem was made public Tuesday.

Bench, who'll turn 25 Thursday, underwent tests at General Hospital here Wednesday, but his physician, Dr. Luis Gonzalez, said it was doubtful the tests would cancel plans to operate next Monday.

Pius X defeated Crete handily two years ago in the district tournament semifinals in the last meeting between the two schools. Saturday's game with Fairbury is at Pius X Gym.

Thursday's Southeast-Northeast game falls into the crucial category, especially for the Knights. They were impressive in their season-opener despite a 51-49 loss to East.

Northeast, however, was more impressive. The Rockets scored a 68-50 opening game win over a veteran-laden Kearney team at Kearney.

East likely will face a challenge from Lincoln High similar to the one the Spartans faced from Southeast. The tall, experienced Links crushed Hastings last week before dropping a five-point decision at Omaha Westside.

Both intra-city contests are set for Pershing Auditorium at 8 p.m.

Saturday's invasion of defending Metro champ and 1972-73 league favorite Omaha Central is set for 8 p.m. at East High's Gym. Southeast is a third Capital City team facing a two-game weekend.

The Knights travel to Fremont Saturday night for a non-conference contest against the Tigers, one of the pre-season East Big 10 favorites.

The weekend activity could give fans an early line on the expected scramble in both the city and Trans-Nebraska Conference races.

Northeast and East are co-favored in both races. But the early-season confrontations could alter the script considerably.

Pius X's twin challenges in Crete and Fairbury are "a rare opportunity for us to demonstrate whatever we may have in our own class," according to Kelley.

Heavyweight Quarry To Continue Boxing

New York (AP) — Jerry Quarry, former ranking heavyweight contender, has ended his brief retirement and will face Randy Neumann of Cliffs Park, N.J., in a 10-round heavyweight bout at Madison Square Garden Jan. 5, it was announced Wednesday.

Quarry, 27, a native Californian now living in New York, will be handled by Gil Clancy. In his last fight, at Las Vegas in October, Quarry was knocked out by Muhammad Ali, making his career record 39 victories, six losses and four draws, with 24 knockouts.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:
 AXYDIBAAXR
 is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
